Trade Minister Will Visit
19 Latin-American Countries

OTTAWA (CP)—Equipped with a bagful of gifts, Trade Minister Howe sets out Monday on the greatest goodwill mission of his career.

Heading a 12-man delegation of business men and government officials, he will make a 17,000-mile, five-week air hop of nine Latin-American countries, seeking ways to boost the already spectacular expansion in Canadian-Latin trade.

"When you do business with a man, you want to talk with him," says Mr. Howe of his trip.

Canada's total exports to the 20 South American countries have increased 10 times in 13 years—to $140,000,000 in 1951 from $14,000,000 in 1938. Imports jumped 12 times to $246,000,000 from $21,000,000.

WILL SEE PERON

Mr. Howe will be talking trade with Argentina's strong man, Juan Peron, President Getulio Vargas of Brazil, and other heads of state and government leaders in Uruguay, Venezuela, Colombia, Dominican Republic, Haiti, Cuba and Mexico.

To each country head he'll be bringing official greetings from Prime Minister St. Laurent and a token of Canada's goodwill—gifts of handicraft from the homes of Quebec.

DOZEN SPEECHES

In his country-to-country hop, Mr. Howe will be making perhaps a dozen speeches to South American chambers of commerce and other trade groups, speaking in English, but including a paragraph or two of Spanish. He learned the language while building grain elevators in South America before he entered politics 18 years ago.

This will be the first Latin American trip for Mr. Howe as a cabinet minister. It will be the first ministerial trade mission there since Senator J. A. MacKinnon, former trade minister, made a tour in 1946.

EXCHANGE PROBLEMS

Canadian-S.A. trade agreements are without import restrictions. But as in Europe, some countries are undergoing exchange crises. Brazil and Argentina are examples. Argentina, a major wheat producer, had a crop failure last year. Brazil is undergoing huge industrial development, causing her to import more than she is selling, with a resulting dollar shortage.

"The mission leaves aboard the C-5 RCAF airliner at 10 a.m. Monday. Those accompanying Mr. Howe will include: D. W. Ambridge, president and general manager of Abitibi Power and Paper Co., representing the Canadian Chamber of Commerce; James Duncan, chairman and president of Massey-Harris Co., Ltd., spokesman for the Canadian Manufacturers' Association; Alex Gray, president of Gray, Bonney Tool Co. Ltd., representing the Canadian Exporters' Association; K. F. Wadsworth, president and general manager of Maple Leaf Milling Co. Ltd.; Clive Davidson, Canadian wheat board secretary, Winnipeg; W. F. Bull, deputy minister of trade.

Manslaughter Charge
Against Longshoreman

Archibald Campbell in Saanich Court
Today as Result of Traffic Fatality

Archibald Campbell, 40, of 200 Burnside Road West was charged with manslaughter at a special sitting of Saanich police court today, arising out of a Christmas Eve traffic death on Tillicum Road.

The tall, husky longshoreman is alleged to have been the driver of a car that hit Frederick Armstrong, 79, of 80 Crease Avenue, around 7 p.m. on December 24. Campbell was also charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

At the request of his counsel, George F. Gregory, accused was remanded to next Thursday afternoon's regular sitting of Saanich court. Mr. Gregory said he would be ready to proceed with the preliminary hearing January 8.

Campbell was arrested Friday evening and was released on $5,000 bail set by Magistrate H. C. Hall. Lloyd G. McKenzie will be prosecutor in the cases.

A coroner's jury Friday returned a verdict that Armstrong's death was accidental "due to collision with an object, evidently a motor vehicle."

Police said Campbell turned his car over to police about four hours after Armstrong's body had been found in a ditch near the corner of Tillicum and Ker.

Campbell contacted police after radio stations had broadcast the hit-and-run death report and Saanich police had appealed to all persons who had driven in that vicinity Christmas Eve to report. Detective Joseph Armstrong said the Campbell car had a broken right headlight and a dented right fender, and it is on expert analysis of damage the police case is built.

Dr. T. W. McConnell Davis, provincial analyst, is completing laboratory tests on glass found at the scene.

Abandon Hope
For Lost Tug,
Crew of Seven

VANCOUVER (CP)—The seven-man crew of the ill-fated tug Petrel has been officially declared as "missing and believed drowned."

The Petrel, missing since Dec. 27 on a 150-mile trip across the stormy Gulf of Georgia from Vancouver to Quadra Island, is believed to be lying 500 feet below the surface near Cape Mudge, 90 miles north of here.

An RCMP spokesman at Campbell River, near Cape Mudge, said today that pieces of wreckage found on nearby Maude Island have been definitely linked with the Petrel.

Discovery of the wreckage brought the official listing of "missing and believed drowned." The crew: Capt. Donald Horie, 24; mate George Fegan, 23; chief engineer John Fanning, 29; second engineer Phil McAleese, 44; cook Edward Johnson, 65; deck hands Vern Perry, 22, and E. F. Bensten, 38, all of Vancouver.

Undertaker
Finds Bullet
In Corpse

Heart Attack First
Thought Death Cause

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (BUP)—A murder investigation began today after an undertaker discovered a bullet in the brain of a well-to-do farmer who was first believed to have died from a heart attack.

An autopsy on the body of Wilfred Miller, 59, disclosed that a 22 calibre bullet had been fired into his head behind an ear. A provincial police officer said suicide had been ruled out because of the angle of the bullet hole.

Inspector E. Graham arrived from Toronto today to assist local officers.

He said a bullet hole had been found in a window of the Miller home but it was not known whether it was an old mark or had been made by the murder bullet.

DIED IN AMBULANCE

Augusta Buta, an immigrant farm hand employed by Miller, told police he found the body on the floor of the farm home New Year's Day. He rushed to tell neighbors and the farmer died in an ambulance route to a hospital. It was thought then that he had died of a heart attack.

The undertaker to whose parlors the body was taken discovered the bullet hole and notified police.

Mrs. A. Dubois, one of Miller's neighbors in a farming community 10 miles west of here, said the hired man had run into her house crying in broken English that his employer had suffered a heart attack. She said there were spots of blood on Buta's clothing.

The immigrant told police the blood must have come from Miller's head when he lifted it after finding him on the floor.

He said he and Miller had spent New Year's Eve together and had retired shortly after 11 p.m. Miller's wife and six-year-old son, Wilfred Jr., were visiting the farmhouse that night or New Year's Day when he found the body.

U.S. Denied
Use of Water
For Power

Hits $400 Million
Skagway Project

OTTAWA (CP)—Resources Minister Robert Winters has rejected a proposal that Canadian water be used to power a huge American aluminum project in Alaska, according to informants here.

He told I. W. Wilson, president of Aluminum Company of America, in a letter early last month that the Canadian government's responsibility was to see that the waters were used for the "maximum benefit" of Canadians.

PLANS SHAKEN

Mr. Winters' letter virtually shatters the company's plans of building a $400,000,000 smelter near Skagway, Alaska, for the production of about 200,000 tons of aluminum a year.

The company had said it wants to power the plant by harnessing the Yukon River, which cuts through Alaska but which has its headwaters in the Yukon and in northern British Columbia.

It cannot do this without permission of the Canadian government.

Alcoa officials met last November with British Columbia government officials for preliminary talks on the proposal.

Neither Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers or his deputy, George Melrose, were available for comment today, but it is understood they had been awaiting a formal proposal from the big company.

B.C. entered the picture because the project would have required water rights on Atlin Lake which lies partly in this province.

A new course was charted today to skirt a severe storm reported developing.

The British prime minister, has made a number of passengers sea-sick.

But he remained in his 10-room suite Friday night, working with his secretaries, and passed up the movie he had planned to attend in the ship's theatre.

Heavy storm shutters were clamped into place on the forward portions of the Queen Mary early today as warnings were received of an angry mid-Atlantic blow which was piling up high seas on the liner's intended course.

There was no indication whether the change in arrival time in New York would delay the first meeting between the prime minister and Eisenhower, whom he knows as an old friend from the Second World War.

It originally has been expected that the two would get together, to discuss such monumental issues as the Korean War, exchange of atomic knowledge and closer Anglo-American relations on Tuesday.

Sources close to Churchill indicated he intends to lose no time in getting down to business after he reaches the United States.

But to date no definite schedule for his talks with Eisenhower or for his visit to Washington for a farewell call on outgoing President Truman has been announced.

The Prime Minister, who has devoted much time aboard ship to study of the official papers he is bringing with him and to dictating the last volume of his war memoirs, will be host with Mrs. Churchill at a cocktail party this evening in their suite.

It will be the first social function of the voyage for the 78-year-old Churchill—except for New Year's Eve, when he drank champagne and greeted the New Year with a "dear to work for closer British-American understanding."

The guest list for tonight's party includes a number of titled personages aboard as well as several British and American naval officers personally selected by Churchill. The Prime Minister has always retained his early love for the sea and for the men of the navy which he commanded as First Sea Lord during the First World War.

During Friday afternoon Mr. Churchill appeared on deck for his daily constitutional and visited the captain's bridge.

He was dressed in a dark blue, naval-type overcoat and a naval peaked cap.

After his turn around the deck, he retired to his suite for a brief rest before the family dinner in the softly-lighted, luxurious grill room of the ship.

A bottle of Churchill's favorite Pol Roger champagne was led by the ship's steward and was awaiting him when he arrived at his table.

'QUEEN' COINS MONDAY
AT CANADIAN BANKS

OTTAWA (CP)—New Queen Elizabeth coins should be available for general distribution at most chartered banks on Monday, W. C. Ronson, master of the mint, said today.

Several million of the new coins—one, five, 10, 25, 50-cent and one-dollar pieces—were minted during the last few weeks and shipments to chartered banks began Wednesday.

The top or obverse side of the coins bear the profile likeness of the new Queen. The reverse side of the coin is unchanged.

Nurse Saves
92 Babies in
Clinic Blaze

MONTREAL (BUP)—Firemen praised a 19-year-old nurse today for the safe evacuation of 92 babies asleep in a four-story clinic when a fire flashed across the third floor.

Nurse Marie-Anne Fortin, who had been standing over 30 sleeping babies, turned in an alarm when she saw smoke eddying out of a room in the nurses' residence occupying part of the same floor.

Then she quickly called other nurses, many of whom were off duty. They bundled the babies in blankets and carried them to safety on the ground floor. None of the babies was more than six months old.

The fire caused minor damage and was extinguished half hour after it started.

Sporadic fighting flared until British troops captured 600 Egyptian auxiliary police last January 25. The next day Cairo had its "Black Saturday" riots, in which nine British and at least 21 other persons including Canadian High Commissioner J. McLeod Boyer were killed.

But the telegram was quickly found to be false, and a probe was started to track down the sender.

Just as the brothers were pronounced dead by the prison doctor at 12:16 a.m., PST, the Western Union office here frantically rang the office of Warden John Cranor.

A telegram had just been received, bearing the signature of "W. D. Magnuson." It read:

"Herewith is ordered a stay of execution of Wilson Brothers by emergency decree, presidential authority, delegated through me as U.S. senator from Washington. Confirmation coming from Olympia."

Presumably, it was from the state's senior U.S. senator, Warren G. Magnuson.

But in quick succession, Magnuson denied in Washington, D.C., he had sent such a message any debate over Senate rules.

Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, a tight hand on the reins as a Republican floor leader, won Senate consent for:

Mau Mau Natives Break
Into Lonely Kenya House

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Two white women grabbed their guns and shot it out with a raiding band of Mau Mau natives in their bedroom Friday night. They killed three of the Africans and wounded a fourth.

The Africans broke into their bedroom on a lonely farm in the Mweiga area of Nyeri, a hot spot in the antiwhite terrorist campaign waged by the Mau Mau secret cult.

The two women are Mrs. Dorothy Raynes-Simson and Mrs. Kitty Heselburger.

The two women were listening to the radio when they noticed that their houseboy seemed agitated.

Mrs. Raynes-Simson, a South African tennis player, glanced towards the door and saw the raiders entering the room.

One of the raiders immediately ran across the room and attacked Mrs. Heselburger. He seized her by the throat and threw her over a chair.

A boxer dog in the room immediately attacked the African. Meanwhile Mrs. Raynes-Simson snatched her revolver and fired two shots at a second attacker who was running at her with his knife. He fell dead.

She then turned and shot the man attacking her friend. Though hit he scrambled to his feet and ran from the room, followed by two other members of the gang.

Both women followed them out and in the darkness Mrs. Heselburger shot and killed a moving figure who later turned out to be her cook. Police believe that both the cook and the houseboy were implicated in the raid.

A third body was found outside the kitchen door.

They also tied up Bingley's cook, who foud the bodies Friday morning.

Utah and Turman Die on Gallows for Slaying
Of Girl After Four Last-Minute Reprieves

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP)—Utah and Turman Wilson died on the gallows early today for the 1950 kidnapping-slaying of a young girl, but before their bodies could be cut down the Washington State Prison was thrown into a turmoil by a telegraphic hoax that purportedly spared them.

For a few brief, hectic moments it appeared that fate had played a tragic trick on the Camas, Wash., brothers who four times before had cheated the hangman.

But the telegram was quickly found to be false, and a probe was started to track down the sender.

Just as the brothers were pronounced dead by the prison doctor at 12:16 a.m., PST, the Western Union office here frantically rang the office of Warden John Cranor.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

HOLIDAY HANGOVER

THE NEW YEAR will be three days old when this appears, but it happens to be written at a time when some celebrants are still suffering from a holiday hangover.

Or so I thought from what I saw on Rockland Avenue yesterday morning. It was a Scottish terrier, limping along on three shaky legs and one bound up with what looked like a strip of old-fashioned red flannel, but it might have been ribbon. On his back was tied a large bow of scarlet cellophane and a Christmas bell, both looking rather the worse for wear—and certainly not detracting from his bedraggled appearance, which suggested that he had been in a scrap.

HOGMANAY?

AS I PASSED he turned a jaundiced eye upon me, his mouth turned down at the corners, adding to his woe-begone expression. Although by myself I had to laugh at his morning-after-night-before dejection. I asked him if he had been celebrating at some doggy Hogmanay, perhaps not wisely but too well?

All he did in reply was to give a prodigious yawn. And when I blithely retorted by wishing him a Happy 1953 full of juicy bones and lots of lamp-posts, Scottie sneered—but whether from sheer boredom or satiation I couldn't quite decide.

GIFT HANGOVER

EARLIER THIS WEEK I came across samples of another kind of holiday hangover—the exchanging of gifts that the recipient either didn't want or didn't like. Passing along the aisles of one department store I was amused to see a male acquaintance rather sheepishly exchanging a couple of ties.

Both were of that screaming color and awful design that seems to represent the Christmas taste of some people, and my friend was evidently trying to compromise his own predilection for something a little more conservative with a desire not to offend the donor more than could be helped. Nor was he alone in his dilemma, judging by the hectic, disordered look of the tie-racks.

BUYING BINGE

THAT LITTLE SCENE made my thoughts ramble back over the buying binge which preceded the demise of 1952. To me, as a Canadian, the old year stands out as one of strange contrasts. Looking out from this continent was like looking out of a warm, cosy mansion, with tables groaning with good things and gifts in abundance, across to a cold, cheerless slum with bare cupboards, its tottering walls echoing to the groans of suffering humans.

For 1952 has seen this country enjoying an era of tremendous prosperity—coupled with a year of amazingly mild weather in this part of the world—at a time when much of the rest of the world has been on an austere, and, in some places, a near-starvation diet, as well as being frozen and buffeted by the elements to an almost unparalleled degree.

MIXED FEELINGS

FOR THOSE PEOPLE greeting "Merry Christmas" would have had a hollow sound and their New Year must have been ushered in with mixed feelings, including, perhaps, a gnawing fear of what 1953 would have in store for them in the shape of further hardships.

We more fortunate folks, blessed by living in this land of peace and plenty—and it is that, despite the grumbling and grouching of some—will surely join in prayerful hopes for an amelioration of their sufferings and support their supplications for a happier new year and the fervent wish that 1953 will bring us all nearer to that universal goal of a real brotherhood of man.

N.Y. Dock Strike May Blow Up Into East Coast Tie-Up

NEW YORK (AP)—Federal mediators marked time today before making a second attempt on Sunday to settle an AFL dock strike which threatens to develop into a major east coast shipping tie-up.

Government conciliators made their first try at establishing waterfront peace Friday night, after a day of work stoppages.

New British Meat Pact Criticized

LONDON (AP)—The pro-Labor Daily Herald says today the new Anglo-Argentine meat agreement is a bad bargain for Britain.

In an editorial entitled "Meat Muddle," the paper says "More meat is going to be available this year—for those who can afford it. That is the meaning of the agreement with Argentina just concluded."

The Herald says R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, "put up the price of meat by fourpence a pound in his budget. Soon further increases seem inevitable. For the British negotiators have now agreed to pay $161 a ton to Argentina, compared with roughly $126 a ton fixed last year.

"Nor is this likely to be the end of the story. Since we shall now be paying much more to Argentina than to the Australians, demands for new agreements may be expected from our other suppliers."

Financial Policy Draws Rap From Low

TORONTO (CP)—Solon E. Low, national Social Credit leader, said at a meeting here Friday night that the Liberal party has become the bankers' party of Canada.

He told 67 persons present at the meeting sponsored by the Greater Toronto Social Credit Council that every time the government needs money, it borrows either from the people or from the banks.

"If we're going to survive," he said, "we've got to change our whole financial policy. Our financial system is based on debt and usury."

Services' Stores Idea Gets 'Cold Shoulder'

Armed Forces 'Enthusiastic'

By JAMES R. NELSON

OTTAWA (BUP)—Proposals by the armed forces to establish commissaries similar to American army and navy PX's are being given cold shoulder treatment by the cabinet, government sources said today.

Establishment of the Canadian version of the PX—post exchange—is enthusiastically supported by the armed forces but opposed by the Canadian Retail Federation. The government, it was understood, is hesitating to act on the armed forces' suggestions because of political implications of putting the defense department into the retail business.

Col. John Wallace, army director of administration, has been chairman of a tri-service committee working on plans for the PX's. He intends to leave next week for the United Kingdom and Europe to review the need for more outlets for civilian goods for men and their families of the army and air force in England, Germany and France.

The plan now being promoted by the armed forces, it was learned, would be to establish commissaries at all points overseas where Canadians are stationed, and at major camps in Canada which are removed by some distance from large cities.

"BEST FEATURES"

The commissaries would be under the administration of a central bureau, and the armed forces plan to incorporate the best features of the American PX system and the British NAAFI canteens operated by the Navy, Army, and Air Force Institute.

Canadian retailers, however, are worried about the prospect of the canteens becoming miniature department stores, and the government hesitates to have the armed forces enter the retailing business.

At present, military camps in Canada operate their own canteens individually, selling such things as cigarettes and shaving gear in addition to dispensing snacks such as coffee and donuts.

This is about as far as the NAAFI canteens go for the British forces.

POLE-SITTING POLE CAPITULATES TO POLICE

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP)—Cold winds drove a pole-sitting Pole down from an 80-foot perch and into the arms of United States immigration service officers early today.

Mieczyslaw Michael Kozel, 25-year-old refugee facing deportation, climbed down after spending 11 chilly hours on a radio tower at the immigration station here. He had threatened to jump if officials did not promise him a parole within 24 hours.

Kozel was locked up pending a hearing. While on the tower, Kozel shouted to reporters that deportation would mean his death because "my father was active against the Russians when they took over Poland and they killed him."

Sen. McCarthy Answers Challenge of Honesty

Dares Senate Sub-Committee to Attempt Any Move Towards Stopping Swearing-In WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Joseph McCarthy, Rep.-Wis., blasting back at the Senate election sub-committee's challenge of his honesty, dared its members to try to bar him from being sworn in today for his second Senate term.

In a bitterly-phrased report, the sub-committee Friday night questioned whether McCarthy had profited personally by "gambling" in the commodities market with "funds advanced for his anti-Communist drive."

Making no recommendations of its own, the group left to the Senate of the new Congress convening today the problem whether to take any further action.

The sub-committee's unanimous report also took one swing at McCarthy's political arch enemy, Senator William Benton (Dem., Conn.). It questioned whether Benton and McCarthy had violated the federal Corrupt Practices Act. The main fire was aimed at McCarthy.

The group found fault with Benton's acceptance of donations totaling $600 from Walter Cosgriff, Salt Lake City banker, in 1950, half of it at a time when Cosgriff was angling for Senate confirmation as a Republican member of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Benton was defeated in the November general election. The sub-committee made no findings about McCarthy's Communist-in-government charges.

Two Hudson's Bay Scholarships Open

The Hudson's Bay Company announces applications may now be made for two scholarships for study in the United Kingdom.

The scholarships are for one year of post-graduate study in advanced business administration. They were created in 1945 on the occasion of the 275th anniversary of the founding of the company. U.S. Requests Extradition of Two Canadians

ALBANY, N.Y. (BUP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey signed papers requesting the extradition of two Canadians charged with the hold-up-slashing of a Buffalo jeweler on December 9.

The papers asked the extradition of Maurice (Digger) O'Dell, 27, and Walter Griffen, 26, both of Hamilton, Ont.

Dist. Attorney John Dwyer of Buffalo, N.Y., who took office Friday picked up the papers here himself. He left immediately for Washington to deliver them to the state department.

The papers signed by Dewey asked the Canadian government to turn the men over to U.S. authorities.

O'Dell and Griffen were identified as two of three bandits who held up the jewelry store of 45-year-old Donald Hurd and shot him to death during a $50,000 gem theft. A third suspect is still at large.

Chile Blast Toll Reaches 51 Dead

Engineer Arrested

VALPARAISO, Chile (AP)—Government officials pressed their investigation today into the cause of the New Year's Day blast which rocked this Chilean port city.

The toll mounted Friday to 51 dead and 348 injured.

Rescue crews probed the smoldering rubble of the high-way department warehouse where the blast occurred. Morgue officials said the total dead may never be determined because of mutilated and destroyed bodies.

The blast shook this city of 200,000 when a fire—believed to have been touched off by a firecracker tossed by a reveler—set the warehouse ablaze.

Authorities, informed that the warehouse had contained 24 boxes of dynamite and other explosives, arrested Alejandro Lacalle, Valparaiso province engineer, Lacalle, later released on bail, said the warehouse contained some boxes of gunpowder and drums of gasoline, paraffin and diesel oil. He denied reports that the building contained dynamite, as well as oxygen tanks.

The blasts disintegrated the concrete walls of the warehouse. The storehouse became the centre of an inferno that enveloped seven nearby buildings. Virtually every window within 300 yards was shattered. Electric and telephone services were disrupted.

Three Airmen Die In N.C. Plane Crash

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—An Air Force transport plane, groping through driving rain and fog, crashed near the Durham-Raleigh airport early today.

Three airmen were killed but one sergeant escaped death when he apparently was thrown clear.

Bloody—and dazed—Sgt. Edward Matus staggered into the airport about 1 a.m. to report his C-47 transport plane had crashed.

The accident occurred as the plane was attempting an emergency landing. It was more than six hours after Matus gave the alarm that a search party found the tangled remains of the two-engined plane a half mile from an airport runway.

The plane, carrying only its crew of four, was returning from a routine training flight.

Two Ontario Tots Perish in Fire

ATIKOKAN, Ont. (BUP)—Two children perished Friday in a fire which destroyed a one-story frame house 130 miles west of Port Arthur, police disclosed today.

Wilson W. Sanders was seriously burned attempting to rescue his children, James Levi, two and a half, and Dennis Joseph, one and a half.

The mother and two other children, a one-month-old girl and a four-year-old boy, escaped the fire which broke out shortly before midday.

The Tongo, or Friendly Islands, under British protection in the West Pacific have a total area of 269 square miles.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By PETE LOUDON and IRVING STRICKLAND

What was your New Year's resolution?

Ken Smith, 16, 2526 Bridge Street:

"I resolved to give more time to bowling. I want to improve my game. I bowled 440 not long ago. I've resolved to try to make more 'dates' this year, too. I think it is more fun when a fellow takes a girl bowling than to go down to the bowling alley alone."

Maurice Pilot, 13, 743 Martin Street:

"Yes, I made a New Year's resolution. I have resolved to work harder at school this year. I want to be sure to pass into Grade VII next June. I go to Quadra School and I want to finish my education and become a carpenter or cabinet maker. I made the resolution because I like bowling and football and I want to be sure they don't keep me from studying."

Mrs. A. Trylinski, 1007 Collins:

"I am not making any resolutions this year. I can't think of anything that I am doing that I shouldn't do. My only vice is smoking, but it is my only pleasure so I will keep it up. I am afraid."

W. Perram, 570 Niagara Street:

"I made my New Year's resolution in December. I resolved to stop smoking and so far it has worked out fine. I think I have already saved quite a bit of money through giving up the habit. I am not going to make any more resolutions though. If I keep this one, I'll be doing fine."

Brian Ruddock, 1759 Hampshire:

"I have resolved to keep no more late hours. I am going to try to for a month anyway and try to get back into shape after the Christmas party season. I honestly didn't get enough sleep over the holidays to have a good dream."

French Kill 100 Vietminh Rebels Daily

2,500 Enemy Slain During December

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—French Union forces, winding up the sixth year of the Indo-China war, killed an average of 100 Vietminh rebels daily during December.

Official figures today showed that at least 2,500 Communist-led enemy were killed in two major operations, one at Na San in the mountainous Thai country and the other in the rice bowl Red river delta.

French casualties during the month are not divulged, but frontline observers are convinced they are not more than one-fifth of those of the enemy.

The latest tally said 1,948 Vietminh bodies were counted during the course of the operation "Bretagne" which began December 1 in the Buichu area delta some 50 miles southeast of Hanoi. The drive, involving 15,000 Franco-Vietnamese troops, concluded Friday.

Added to the 1,500 killed at Na San and an estimated several hundreds killed in smaller operations, the total for the month is about 3,000—or an average of 100 daily.

Witness Tells Of Fatal Fight

Coroner's Jury Names Island Father Slain Son's Adversary in struggle

NANAIMO—A quarrel early Tuesday morning over ownership of a home led to the fatal stabbing of Robert Adams Jr. at Lantzville, a witness testified Friday at a coroner's inquest here.

The jury named the father, Robert Adams Sr., as the man who inflicted the wound. A preliminary hearing on a charge of murder will open Jan. 7.

The witness, Clarence Hawley, said that he and a companion, William John, visited the Adams home where they drank whisky and Adams Sr. drank the equivalent of three large glasses of wine.

There had been a quarrel between the father and son over ownership of the home, he said. Later the 22-year-old victim and his wife quarrelled, and when the young husband twisted his wife's arm the father treated it with cold water.

He and the son left the house, Hawley said, but when he argued young Adams into returning to his family they found the door locked.

The father then threatened Hawley with a flower pot and the son threatened to break the door down with an axe until the victim's wife admitted them.

TELLS OF FIGHT

The father then advanced on him with a bread knife, Hawley said. He received a shoulder wound in trying to disarm the father, but backed the young man and his wife into a corner.

However, Hawley said, young Adams broke away, took up a chair, and advanced on his father. The older man evaded the chair, he said, and the son fell in the fight that followed.

Mrs. Adams, 19-year-old wife of the victim, testified only that she had not been drinking during the quarrel or earlier, but that her husband had been drinking.

John was fined $5 in absentia

TV SUGGESTED AS 'TEACHER'

Union Boss Urges New York To Close Schools for Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—Transportation union boss Michael J. Quill urged the city today to close its schools and avoid panic on overloaded subways for the duration of a strike against eight private bus lines.

Quill suggested that some of the six New York television channels could be used for classroom instruction in the homes of students until his 8,000 bus drivers go back to work on a new 40-hour schedule.

His advice was given in a telegram to School Supt. William Jansen, who thumbed down the idea but ordered public and parochial high schools not to begin classes Monday until 10 a.m.

The bus strike affecting 3,500,000 daily riders, started exactly one minute after the New Year began. The buses stopped rolling following a last-minute hassle between Quill and Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri.

Quill was offended by Impellitteri's charge that the Transportation Workers' Union (CIO) and the bus operators were trying to raise bus fares in a conspiracy. Quill called the mayor a "liar."

Whereas Quill turned down another mediation offer from Impellitteri Friday night, he predicted there would be an important development at a mass meeting of his union Sunday.

The bus drivers sought the 40-hour week without loss of the pay they had been receiving for working 48 hours. The operators said they could not grant it without higher fares or financial aid from the city.

The bus fare is 10 cents, same as that charged by the city-owned subway and elevated lines, on all routes except those of the Fifth Avenue line. It costs 12 cents per ride on the famous double-deckers.

A Full Agenda for 1953

The World

BETWEEN 1945 AND 1952, all international policies in the free world were little more than an emergency operation and, on the economic side, a tourniquet to stop a hemorrhage. After a rapid build-up of military strength in the last two years, and the physical restoration of a wounded Europe, 1953 will open a new chapter and reveal a new approach to the free world's problems.

It is evident, to begin with, that the period of huge American economic aid to Europe is closing. Yet Europe, despite the almost miraculous reconstruction of its productive power, is still unable to support itself completely and is in deficit with the dollar area. Therefore, unless Europe is to be abandoned the United States must replace aid with trade.

In economic terms the answer which the Eisenhower government and the Republican Congress give to that question should be the decisive news of the year. Already the question has been lifted out of parliamentary speeches and plunged into practical politics. Mr. Churchill is on his way to Washington at this hour undoubtedly to seek a fundamental change in American policy, to secure a wider sale of sterling goods in the United States and finally to propose American backing if Britain takes the risk of making its pound convertible into dollars.

The whole course of the year's events may depend upon the meeting of two old war comrades in the White House.

All this is part of a larger process. Up to the last year or so it might be said that the main economic problem of the world was to get its war-damaged productive machine back to normal. That has been largely accomplished, even in such ruined states as Germany and Japan. Production is now enormous, is higher than ever in America and Europe and is growing. That, of course, is mainly why the inflationary pressures of 1950 and 1951 eased in 1952.

The problem, therefore, is largely one of distribution. The world economy has recovered its productive power but it is drastically distorted, many nations are producing the wrong things, are selling and buying in the wrong places. The test of statesmanship in 1953 will lie in its ability to cure this distortion, open up the clogged channels of trade and allow a fairer distribution of the world's wealth. It will take much longer than a year, at best, to effect a cure. It may take many years. But in 1953 we may see a good beginning.

Politically also it must be a year of readjustment. The distortions in world politics—not only the bisection of the human community by Russian communism but the eruption of nationalism in many backward countries, revolution in others, and in some the clash of races—are almost unimaginable and, for some time, probably incurable. Nevertheless, under a new American government, a new start will be made in this field.

At the same time the free world's military prospects already are being reassessed. Is the present rearmament schedule fast enough to assure safety soon enough? Is it too fast for the national economies to bear? Those questions will have to be settled this year, as they could not be settled until the American election.

For all these reasons the agenda of 1953 will be crowded with business and with doubt. At the moment it does not seem to be as dangerous a year as 1952 appeared at its beginning. The communist blows feared then have not fallen. Stalin is again talking peace. But the world is still a tinderbox, now poised on the ultimate weapon of the hydrogen bomb. No man can tell what the next twelve months will produce in progress or danger.

Doubtless in all time human events have never been so incalculable, for we continue to live in a world revolution when even the forces behind it cannot be calculated. We can be sure only that events will move fast everywhere before this year ends. And on the whole, though it must be said cautiously, the prospects look a little better than they looked a year ago.

Canada

ANY FOREIGNER LOOKING at Canada as it enters a new year would say that Canadians seem to appreciate their good fortune less than any people on earth. We have been living and are living yet in Canada's golden age. Barring an international catastrophe, this should be a great year for Canadians.

The economists' charts point to a record production of wealth. In 1952 we seem to have passed, for the moment anyway, the worst peak of a dangerous inflation. The economy has been extraordinarily steady for the last nine months at least and is basically stronger today than it has ever been. Despite many mistakes, this remains one of the best managed nations of our time.

If the Canadian people are by nature sceptical and slow to admit their own achievements, that may be one of the chief reasons for them. This is a nation which prefers accomplishment to talk and quietly, in its own Arctic fashion, has performed a prodigy without exact parallel anywhere.

So far as our own affairs are concerned we can enter the new year with good heart. Unhappily much of the world is not so rich in resources or so well managed as this country. By no possible means can we, or any other nation for that matter, escape the climate of the world. Thus all the calculations that our businessmen, our labor unions and our government can make are lacking one essential premise. We cannot know what the world climate will be. At least our own barometer points to fair weather, perhaps with some local storms.

It will be a busy year for Canadians in every field. They will be busy in the prodigious industries of the farm, forest, mine, ocean and factory. They will be busy also with politics, which are only the outward expression of the people's life, the mechanism through which the clashing elements of such a broad and diverse land are reconciled and compromised.

This is to be an election year, though no one, probably not even the prime minister who must finally decide, knows when the election will occur. We do know, however, that it will be a complex election and nothing like the simple Liberal sweep of 1949. For today our politics are splintered as they have never been before. The government is opposed by three parties: two of the right, one of the left. The vote evidently is to be split and confused.

But the instinct of the Canadian electorate, after all the confusions of a political campaign have been digested is always clear—the electorate rightly desires government of one party or another, with a clear majority, able to govern and not dependent on temporary alliances. This year, it is to be expected, the electors will again produce such a government.

Politics is chiefly significant as a reflection of deeper movements within society itself. Of 1953 it may be said that the current mood is one of consolidation rather than experiment. The Canadian people, as reflected by their politicians, are anxious to make the existing social experiments work before they try new ones. And in that humor they are vigorously resisting the new taxes which new experiments must involve.

The nation is now beginning to cash in on the industrial revolution of the war and post-war years as the new industries come into production. The real question, indeed, is whether the nation can stand, can manage and can maintain its growing prosperity. By the end of an election year the answer to that question should be clearer.

of major thoroughfares under a plan freed from politics and local pressures.

With an election in view, the old line parties must not underestimate the crisis revealed by the election of '52. They must take realistic stock of the situation and rebuild to meet the needs of the times. They cannot assume that an election will be postponed. They should immediately bend every effort to prepare for what will be a crucial test.

Politics is only a reflection of the ways and habits of the people; it is an expression of their needs and their willingness to fulfill them. The basic truths lie underneath. Despite the indefiniteness of the present political superstructure, it is clear that the prospects of British Columbia are excellent. But to derive full benefit, the province must adjust itself to changing world conditions.

The fortunes of the people in the coming year will depend perhaps less on their government than on their ability to recognize and conform to the new situations arising in national and international economics. If the transition is made smoothly, if they utilize the readjustments as an opportunity rather than a setback, the province will enjoy increasing prosperity and continued progress.

revenues have been lost, through reduction in the city's share of the sales tax due to redistribution on census returns. On the other hand, it may hope for some compensation in the way of a capital city grant and the questionable aid of payments from the federal government on properties which do not now pay taxes.

These are matters apparent to the council. To them must be added the problem of personal relationships. After a year's experience Mayor Harrison should be in a position to weld his colleagues into a more co-operative unit. There should be less talk of being "thwarted" and a better appreciation of the fact that all members of the council, from the mayor to the most junior alderman, are elected to serve the city and to take advantage of one another's abilities—not to concentrate on their weaknesses in petty family squabbles.

The government will be expected also to give the legislature full information on the hospital insurance scheme and how it is to be rescued from its present state, now as confused in the public mind as politics itself. A full statement on liquor policy will be expected, based on the recommendations of the committee of enquiry now before the cabinet. In this respect Mr. Bennett should be accorded a full measure of public sympathy and encouragement in grappling with a problem that has plagued the province since the beginning of the century.

A new basic concept of British Columbia's destiny has been reopened with the revival of a plan to extend the province's northern border to the Arctic. The plan may have merit but it has not yet been adequately explained: the balance of potential wealth and cost of development has not been analyzed for the public. This question, too, must receive full legislative scrutiny.

It is to be hoped also that the government will continue the policy of highway construction so capably carried out by its predecessor, whereby the province is acquiring a network aldermen may authorize patchwork repairs on the span; they may spend about $125,000 on a complete rehabilitation of the bridge; or they may approve a new two-lane span, capable of expansion, at a cost ranging upward from $300,000.

Apart from the bridge and usual public works maintenance, the city appears to face only one other major project, the renewal or replacement of water distribution mains.

Without straining its imagination, the council may also look forward to increased school operating costs. The swelling tide of new enrollments makes that inevitable.

On the credit side, it can note with thanks that members of the different city department staffs have foregone applications for wage increases.

It is difficult to see how, even with economy, the council can preserve efficiency and reduce the tax rate. Some

British Columbia

THE COMING YEAR WILL BE a decisive one in British Columbia's history. Politically, economically and socially there are vital questions to be answered.

There will be a general election, in an effort to resolve the chaos and stalemate that resulted from the balloting of last June. But a meeting of the legislature should first help to clarify for the voters the policies of all parties. That public forum, the final resort of the self-governing public, has too long been silent.

The government of the day is under no obligation to announce its policies to the public in advance of a session. No one can complain because the Bennett administration has so far kept its own counsel regarding its intentions, valuable as some enlightenment might have been. But it is the duty of a government to inform the legislature of its policies and to defend them against the criticism of the opposition.

Thus the people are entitled to look to the next session for a clear statement of the government's plans, to look to Finance Minister Gunderson for reassurance that he will arrest the continual increase in taxes and perhaps even—on the basis of campaign statements—effect a reduction

Victoria

WHILE VICTORIA'S CITY council can boast no clairvoyance, it stands at the opening of 1953 in a position to look with confidence into the year ahead.

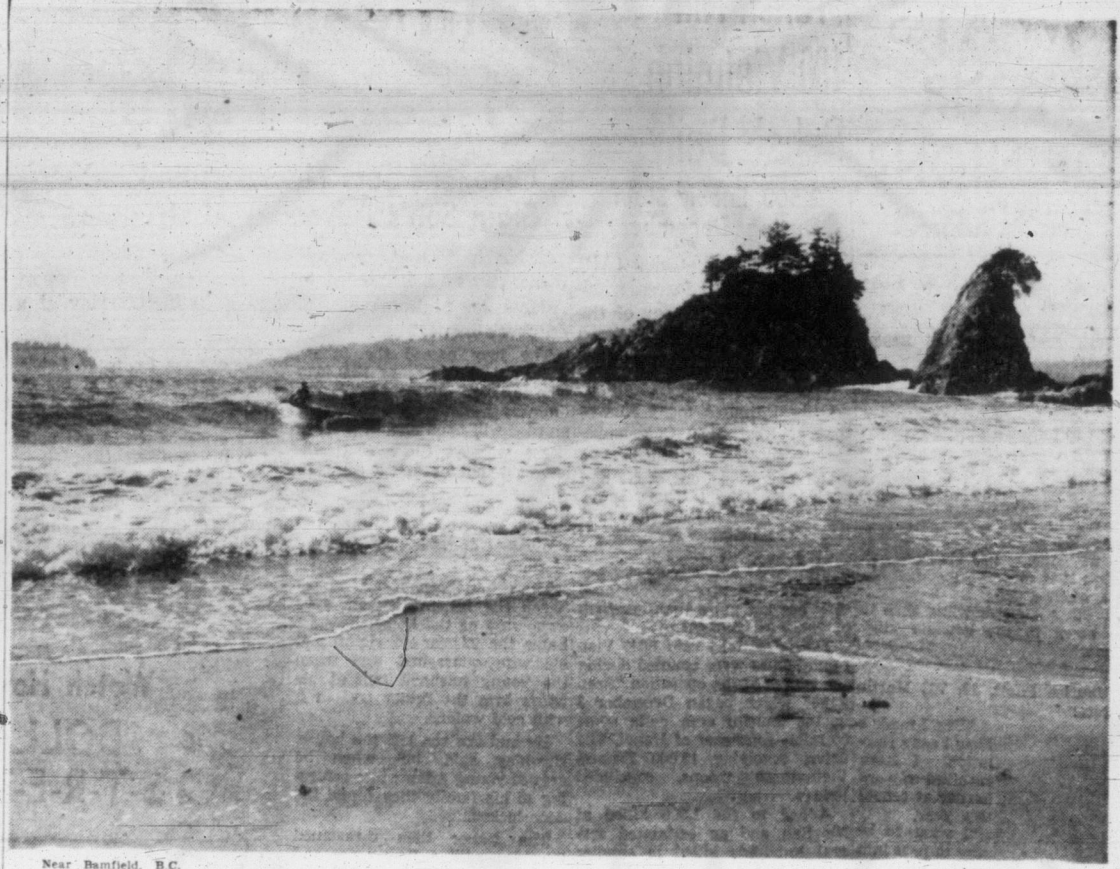

Like other governments, it faces serious problems of finance. It had the highest mill rate in its history during 1952. But at the same time it had the highest taxable assessment, and with that, the highest collection of taxes in recent years—more than 93½ per cent.

The city found popular backing for sound financing in the support given to its by-law last month to raise funds in advance to meet heavy debt payments in years to come.

The council was still left with problems.

This year, among other things, it should decide exactly what it wishes to do about Point Ellice Bridge. Three courses lie before it. The mayor and

Advance and Retreat of the Great Ice Cap Left Bleak Land of Rubble for the New Age

BY DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL, Director, Provincial Museum

THE second great ice sheet to cover the land, was of shorter duration though it too persisted for an unknown number of centuries and reached a thickness of many thousands of feet near its points of origin. Even near the sea where its great mass he came spread out, the surface of the ice was almost a mile above the base rock over which it pushed its way.

Under the tremendous weight the land mass was again depressed as much as one thousand feet and much of the old shoreline became inundated. Huge deposits of debris left behind by the previous ice sheet were inched slowly into the sea by the irresistible power of the new ice-front. Rocks carried in the grip of the ice gouged deep grooves in the base rock as they themselves became ground into floury clay. The base rock, too, was broken on the side facing the direction of movement and loosened fragments were plucked from their position and carried many miles by the ice.

ICE FLOW

Over the area which was to become Vancouver Island the ice crept in a southwesterly direction, deviating from its course only when obstructed by major features of the land. Thus one great tongue of ice was deflected westward through the Olympic Mountains to flow seaward through the valley which later became Juan de Fuca Strait and a second flow pushed southward through the Puget Sound area to reach the coast south of the Olympics.

North of the split a vast whitened plain of ice extended for many miles broken only by a few ice-covered peaks which extended above the surface.

LOOSE ENDS

A FRIEND of mine, a financier in Wall Street, sent me a Christmas card the other day and scrawled on it a note greeting the new year, which he had just received, that British Columbia had elected a socialist government.

To relieve the poor fellow's mind I wrote him immediately that British Columbia had elected a Social Credit government, a very different matter. Then, in an idle holiday mood, I picked up the stenographic record of the Canadian Parliament for a light reading and there stumbled upon a speech by Mr. J. H. Blackmore, the member for Lethbridge and the leading philosopher of Social Credit. After reading his speech I had to admit that the Wall Street financier was right after all. The end results of Social Credit and socialism will be the same.

This may not be generally understood when Messrs. Colwell and Low are conducting a bitter feud in Parliament and when Social Credit claims to be the only reliable protector of free enterprise. But observe the words of Mr. Blackmore, at the bottom of the first column on page 550 of the parliamentary record.

After explaining that a Social-Credit government in Ottawa will create more money and distribute it generously to the people, Mr. Blackmore obviously realizes that this kind of thing can have unfortunate results by raising prices when there is more money than goods in circulation.

Various Roman emperors, King Henry VIII of England and many modern governments have all tried that trick and the public has paid the price in the process of inflation. Social Credit, however, has a remedy. If prices start to rise after the excessive money is pumped out by the government then the government will step in and fix prices by fiat. Says Mr. Blackmore, laying the policy on the line:

"Social Credit would adopt measures adequate for the establishment and maintenance of a just price to producers, comprising the cost of production plus a fair profit."

TOTAL CONTROL

The "just price" and not the crude debasement of the currency has always been the real core of Social Credit. Once the state undertakes to fix the price to the producers and to fix the price to the consumer and, to do so, will have to fix all wages because they largely govern prices. Very soon, having gone that far, the state will also have to determine the amount of production in all lines of industry. No state can fix prices without controlling the entire economy.

Socialism has always known that and is ready to do a complete job, holding that the state can fix prices and run everything better than the private enterprise and the open competitive market. That is an honest, candid and understandable policy. You may not like it but you can comprehend it. You know what you are voting on at election time.

Social Credit also can mean nothing in the end but total state control. Yet it is presented, by a marvel of contradiction and paradox, as a free enterprise system, indeed as the only workable free enterprise system. It proclaims its undying devotion to the system which inevitably it must destroy.

The enemies of Social Credit will say at once that it is dishonestly disguising its true intentions. That I do not believe. Most Social Crediters simply have not thought their system through, do not perceive its results and are dazzled by the glitter of easy money created by the benign Social Credit government.

Has our Mr. Bennett, for example, have former Conservatives like Mr. Bonner and Mrs. Ralston and former Liberals like Mr. Gunderson contemplated the fixing of prices by the state? Are they ready to repeal the first laws of free enterprise? Do they consider themselves or any other government really capable of managing the huge, complex and brittle machine of the national economy? Again I doubt it.

But that is what Social Credit means, that is what Social Credit proposes to undertake if it ever comes to office in Ottawa. It proposes to undertake socialism under a new name and meanwhile condemns the socialists who tell us frankly what they have in mind. Maybe it would be a good idea for the Social Crediters, when they have time, to find out what they are talking about.

IMPORTANT ENOUGH

Further to Mrs. Marshall's letter in the Dec. 17 Times with regard to Mr. Graham Steed's reported suggestion that the singing of O Canada be discontinued and The Queen only, sung at Victoria Symphony concerts, I should like to add a few words to Mrs. Marshall's remarks.

It has been my good fortune to live in many parts of this truly magnificent country of ours, and there is one custom, at least, which I found to be universal from shore to shore. Whenever Canadians wish to give an occasion the highest honor it is in their power to bestow, whenever they desire to give an event importance and dignity, O Canada is sung, in addition to The Queen. This is not a matter of correctness of procedure, etc., but rather a matter of "heart," as any Canadian knows.

Personally, I consider the Victoria Symphony concerts to be events of sufficient cultural importance in our community to warrant this honor being accorded them.

As for the people who are not Canadians who live within our shores, common courtesy, the world over, demands that they honor the national song of the country in which they live, dull though they may consider it's stanzas to be!

These rains were caused by a Pacific storm which approached from the southwest bringing a strong flow of very moist air. The main storm has moved inland giving overnight snow showers to the interior. But the same flow of air continues and another storm in the series is already approaching the north coast. Cloud and showers will persist over most areas Sunday.

Union Claims Employers Broke Faith

A claim that Yarrows Ltd. failed to live up to its contract with the Carpenters' Union, Local 1508 (TLC), will be submitted to arbitration by the union.

It claims the company did not require that shipwrights become union members within 30 days of employment or be laid off. Instead, the company laid off union men and kept others known to be "unfair to the union," a carpenter's spokesman said.

Shipwrights, Joiners and Wood Caulkers Industrial Union, Local 9 (CCL), now represents shipwrights in the yard as a result of a vote taken in the yard December 23 when shipwrights voted 20-1 in favor of Local 9.

Release of U.S. Troops Demanded

BERLIN (UP)—Lieut. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, U.S. troop commander in Europe, has demanded that the Soviets release two American soldiers held by the Russians since Nov. 26.

The Communist East German news agency, ADN, recently claimed the two—Pte. Raymond Michalowski of Perth Amboy, N.J., and Pte. Lieutenant Night of Los Angeles—had requested political asylum in Soviet-run East Germany.

Eddy, in a letter dispatched Friday to Gen. Vassily I. Chulikov, Soviet troop commander in Germany, ignored the Communist claim that the two Americans had requested Soviet asylum.

Stolen Car Racket Broken in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Six men were charged Friday as police disclosed a stolen car racket. The men were charged with conspiracy to steal and retain stolen cars following recovery of parts of two cars by police.

Two of the men are proprietors of an auto body shop, and two others are garage operators. Arrested were Donald J. Gruber, Angus Finlayson, Sigmund Hemke, Peter S. Graham, Gordon L. Turcotte and John D. Gilde-ester.

'FRIGHTENED CHILDREN'

Housewife Can Now Sing With Windows Wide Open

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—Mrs. Wentworth Morris won a legal victory today over her Monroe Street neighbors who think her voice sounds like a "fire siren." She could sing with her windows open!

For months Mrs. Morris had been forced to sing with windows closed under an injunction obtained by four neighbors who claimed "her vocal gymnastics 'frightened children' and 'drove husbands away.'"

After deliberating since November Chancellor Sam Marable decided to dissolve the injunction. But to "avoid a controversy" he issued a new decree

ISLAND DIGEST

PORT ALBERTI—Ships of seven different nationalities were loaded with a record 14,166,660 feet of lumber here during December. Largest single shipment, of 4,982,000 feet, was sent to the United States on the S.S. Sunwhite of Canadian registry.

COURTENAY—W. C. Moore, Comox MLA, hopes to have the district road grant increased when the new budget is brought down "so that conditions, which at the present time are extremely bad on some back roads, can be remedied in the coming year."

He spoke in praise of A. R. Colby, resigning district engineer, saying that the public works appropriation for the riding was "ridiculously inadequate" and that the engineer had done well with the limited funds at his disposal.

He will be replaced by Roy McLeod, Saanich district engineer.

NANAIMO—Gales this week badly damaged two aircraft at the city airport at Cassidy this week. One was carried nearly one-quarter mile by the wind and a new plane, was turned over.

Three Drivers Pay $35 Fines After Oak Bay Accidents

Three motorists involved in December traffic accidents in Oak Bay were fined $35 each in municipal police court Friday afternoon when they pleaded guilty to charges of careless driving. Fined were William G. Elkington, 372 Island; Mrs. Anne J. Williams, 239 Superior; and E. H. Wright, 4330 Douglas. Magistrate H. C. Hall imposed a license suspension against Mrs. Williams.

Angelica Paz Dead

ROME (BUP)—Angelica Gainza Paz, 51, sister of Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, former publisher of the expropriated newspaper La Prensa of Buenos Aires, died here Friday of a heart attack. She held the title of Countess of Sangro.

Limiting Mrs. Morris' singing lessons to three hours a day, Marable said testimony at a hearing last November failed to prove Mrs. Morris' coloratura exercises "constitute a nuisance" but "the proof she offered" was that three hours of practice was enough.

The dissolved injunction, a temporary one issued earlier, had limited practice to two hours daily, as well as decreeing that all windows and doors be closed.

The four neighbors sought to make this injunction permanent and at the hearing one housewife testified the singing "nearly drove her to divorce. Another claimed it 'frightened children.'"

Bandits Get Thin Chunk of Big Haul

Cheques Defeat Yukon Yeggs From Realizing $100,000 on Break-In; Get Only $3,000

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (BUP)—Bandits who staged a $100,000 robbery in this old frontier town had to abandon $97,000 of the loot because they came up against something the badmen of '98 would not have encountered—cheques.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police reported today that the checks had been found in a safe in snow-covered bush country Friday not far from this town born in the Klondike gold rush. The robbers, therefore, made a net haul of $3,000 in Canadian and American currency.

The hacked-open safe was found with the checks stuffed inside. It was stolen from the office of the White Pass and Yukon Railway November 29 but its discovery gave no clue to the bandits' identity.

The mounties said, however, that finding the safe only five miles from town confirmed a theory that the robbery was staged by men who knew their way around the railway office. Two other safes containing only documents were ignored during the robbery.

The railway posted a $500 reward for the bandits' capture. The White Pass and Yukon Railway winds 150 miles through some of Canada's wildest mountain country from the Alaskan waterfront town of Skagway on the Pacific coast to Whitehorse.

The corporation also operates bus and trucking lines over "2,000 miles of northern road as well as an extensive waterway shipping system."

Of America's 633,000 miles of Federal-aid primary and secondary highways, also 34.8 per cent are rated "adequate" by the American Association of State Highway Officials. The current rate of damage is far ahead of the rate of repair.

The report, made public Friday, said the committee concluded that "the maintenance of private sources of funds is essential to the proper growth of our free schools, colleges, churches, foundations and other charitable institutions."

For this reason, it suggested that the tax-writing House of Representatives ways and means committee re-examine present tax laws and change them to encourage individuals to "make gifts to these meritorious institutions."

Five Councils Meet Monday As Act Rules

All municipal councils in the Greater Victoria area will meet for the first session of the year on Monday night, in accordance with the Municipal Act.

Subsequent meetings will be held on the same week night chosen by the individual councils last year, unless the incoming councils see fit to change.

Last year Oak Bay council met on the first and third Wednesdays of each month. Esquimalt council met every second Monday. Central Saanich met on the second Tuesday of each month and Saanich met on the first and third Mondays.

At Saanich, Central Saanich and Esquimalt council members will be sworn Monday. Oak Bay's councillors were inducted Tuesday by Reeve P. A. Gibbs, who is a justice of the peace. City aldermen were sworn before Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane.

Canadian Radar Posts Manned by U.S. Troops

NEW YORK (CP)—The Herald Tribune says today Canadian government sources have disclosed that hundreds of United States Air Force men are moving into Canada to man radar stations.

The radar stations, built with U.S. funds, scan routes Russian bombers would use if they were to attack American cities.

An Ottawa dispatch calls the movement of U.S. servicemen into Canada "the fruition of a secret two-year program known as Operation Pinetree."

"Under it, powerful radar installations have been built north of the Canadian population belt to protect both Canadian and American cities from attack."

In Ottawa, defense department spokesmen said United States Air Force men began arriving in Canada some months ago to man radar stations for the air defense of North America.

U.S. personnel began taking up posts in early autumn at cer-

THE CHURCH PAGE

By LANCE H. WHITTAKER

A Church Page reader confesses "puzzlement and dismay" over the failure of the Community Chest to reach its objective this year and asks for "some enlightening comment."

The request is both flattering and intimidating. Probably everyone interested in the many member organizations of the Community Chest has a theory about the failure of recent campaigns, and there are undoubtedly several contributing factors. To assert that the Community Chest idea is basically ill-conceived is like taking a plunge into hot water; very hot water. Well, here goes.

Many sound arguments were put forth for the Community Chest idea when it was first broached, and the argument which carried greatest potency, and which actually carried the day, was the proposal to "take taggers off the street." Although based primarily on the "nuisance" of taggers, the argument's strongest point was an unspoken one; that the difficulty of deciding when and how much to give, or when not to give, was to be lifted from your shoulders and my shoulders. All we had to do was to decide what we could afford and "dig down" once each year and almost all the problems of charitable giving would be solved in one fell swoop!

The fallacy of that simple solution is now being demonstrated. Almost every criticism made today of the Community Chest reflects the determination (in many cases entirely subconscious) of the individual to make his own decisions and to do his own giving.

Gnawing Conscience Prompts Criticism

What are the criticisms? That the Chest gives to the wrong organizations; that "we don't know where our money goes"; that the system is too "impersonal"; and that efficiency has ruled out the human touch.

All these complaints can be explained away very satisfactorily by Chest people, but the fact remains that every cry is prompted by a nagging conscience.

And that is as it should be. Along with the integrity and value of human personality—a fundamental concept, basic to both our Christian religion and our political democracy—goes the full and ultimate responsibility for our individual relationships with our fellow men, and not the least of those relationships is that between the fortunate and the unfortunate.

It is necessary to delegate that responsibility in part; there must be organization of our giving as well as many other aspects of our living, but the extent of that organization is not alone a matter for the political pundits; social and welfare workers could cogitate upon it with profit.

'Organization' Weakens Appeal

There is legitimacy, of course, in the claims that the Community Chest makes for efficiency and economy of administration, but intrinsically the idea was initiated as a concession to individual laziness and an effort to lift the burden of personal responsibility.

There may be fields where such delegation can safely be made (although it is doubtful) but it is submitted that an appeal from one heart to another can be "organized" out of existence.

That is literally what is happening in the Community Chest movement, not only in Victoria but across Canada.

Newly Named Polish Cardinal Seeks Permit to Visit Rome

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Vatican says Archbishop Stefan Wyszyński of Warsaw, one of two Roman Catholic prelates in Communist countries who were recently designated cardinals, has asked the Polish government for permission to visit Rome to collect his red hat.

A Vatican source said Friday no word has been received to indicate whether Poland will grant the request.

The other cardinal-designate, Yugoslav Archbishop Aloysius Stepinac of Zagreb, will be absent when the Pope creates 24 cardinals in the week beginning Jan. 12.

Archbishop Stepinac was reported to have said a month ago that he would not ask for an exit permit. He has been living in the Zagreb vicarage since his release from jail in Dec., 1951. He served part of a 16-year sentence on conviction of wartime collaboration with the Nazis.

Douks Appeal To Community

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Efforts of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors from Hilliers, B.C., for a return to communal life have won some response from Freedomsites in West Kootenay. The Hilliers group is campaigning in the Grand Forks-Gilpin area.

During recent parades, Gilpin Sons displayed banners proclaiming "toil and peaceful life." "Sons of Freedom cannot be slaves of corruption" and "the life of one child is equal to that of the world."

A few Sons from Krestova, Thrums and Glade have been drawn to Gilpin and Grand Forks and several community houses contain up to 17 families who share toil, food and other possessions. A community kitchen is being constructed.

A Christmas message from Stefan S. Sorokin, spiritual leader of the Sons, urged them to lead peaceful lives and to co-operate with the authorities. Sorokin is in San Francisco and his letter came from there. Some Freedomsites are continuing to seek passports in preparation for a possible move to South America. Sorokin is reported to be investigating resettlement possibilities.

Rhodes Scholar, Church Leader, Is Visitor Here

A 23-year-old Winnipeg law student, recently selected as a Rhodes scholar, visited Victoria Tuesday in his capacity of president of the National Young People's Union of the United Church of Canada.

Bill Norrie was accompanied by Des McCalmont, another Winnipeg student, who is NYPU leadership training convenor.

The two took time from a session of the western regional conference of the Student Christian Movement, at Vancouver, to make their one-day call here.

Purpose of the visit was to meet and confer with representatives of the Vancouver Island Young People's Presbytery.

Arrangements for the visit were made by Miss Muriel Lee, past president of the Island organization. The visitors were guests of honor at a Chinese supper served at the Chinese United Church, Fisgard Street.

Reading breviary is Father Patrick Norton, shortly after the 69-year-old Iowan was ordained a priest of the Roman Catholic Church in ceremonies at the Church of San Geronimo, in Rome. Father Norton bears the unusual distinction of being both a natural and spiritual father.

Before the death of his wife some years ago, the then Patrick Norton raised a family of 14. Following her death, the widowed husband entered the seminary to study for the priesthood. One of his sons is a priest and another is studying for Holy Orders in the U.S.

The owner of the ruined abbey and the estates surrounding it, Lt.-Col. J. W. Weld, a Catholic, is a descendant of the original Weld family which has owned Bindon since 1641.

He has offered the property to the monks of Ealing Priory, West London, a Benedictine foundation which runs a large Catholic boarding school.

Originally the abbey and monastery were owned by the Cistercian Order. They had been there since 1172. Henry VIII ordered the dissolution of English monasteries in 1536. The monks were turned out, the abbey pillaged, and the monastery destroyed.

Dom Philip Clarke, novice-master at Ealing Priory, said "we hope eventually to establish a foundation which will restore Bindon Abbey to its former glory."

With the abbey goes a 12-acre farm. The foundation will probably be almost self-supporting, like most Benedictine foundations in Britain.

Under the auspices of the World's Evangelical Alliance, the Universal Week of Prayer will be observed here in Victoria. The Central Baptist Church has been loaned for these meetings, which commence Sunday, and will be held at 3 to 4 p.m. each day until Saturday. The meetings are interdenominational. Christians of all groups have been invited to attend.

Abbey Seized By Henry VIII Back to Monks

LULWORTH, England (Reuters)—Roman Catholic monks are to return to ancient Bindon abbey near this Dorsetshire village, more than 400 years after they were ejected by King Henry VIII.

The owner of the ruined abbey and the estates surrounding it, Lt.-Col. J. W. Weld, a Catholic, is a descendant of the original Weld family which has owned Bindon since 1641.

He has offered the property to the monks of Ealing Priory, West London, a Benedictine foundation which runs a large Catholic boarding school.

A goodwill exchange of pulpits between ministers of St. Andrew's Presbyterian and First United Churches will mark the first Sunday of the new year.

The Rev. Moir A. J. Waters, B.A., B.D., will conduct the morning service at St. Andrew's, the title of his sermon being "The Power To See It Through."

MANGRUM TAKES LEAD IN LOS ANGELES OPEN

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Lloyd Mangrum clipped two strokes off par for a 69 late Friday to lead the way through the first round of play in the $20,000 Los Angeles open golf tournament.

Mangrum, from Niles, Ill., a two-time winner of the event, carded 33-69 for the par 35-36—71 course at the Riviera Country Club.

There was a multiple tie in the 70 bracket, including Cary Middlecoff, Memphis; Jack Burke Jr., Houston; Art Wall, Pocono Manor, Pa., and Leo Biagetti, a newcomer from Baltimore.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

Don't say we didn't warn you, because here's what could happen in 1953:

JANUARY—Victoria Cougars playoff hopes will flicker as they flirt with the Western Hockey cellar and seventh place. United's Wally Milligan will hurt his trick knee again. Kins will lose to Alberni in a senior A men's basketball game and officials will take a roasting. Norm Baker will come out of retirement. Shamrocks will sign two imports.

FEBRUARY—Cougars' playoff hopes will continue to flicker. Kins will lose to Alberni in the basketball playoffs and officials will take a beating. Milligan will re-injure his trick knee. Reg Patterson will announce that Cec Garriott has signed three ballplayers from the Los Angeles area.

MARCH—Cougars will score four goals in six minutes of the last period of the last game of the WHL season at Seattle and edge into the playoffs. Milligan will play despite an injured knee and lead United to the second half Coast Soccer League title. Patterson will announce that Garriott has signed three more ballplayers from the Los Angeles area. Shamrock coach Arnold Ferguson will announce his retirement. Joe Walcott will sign to meet Rocky Marciano. Ray Robinson will come out of retirement.

APRIL—Cougars will defeat the WHL champions in seven games and advance to the WHL finals, where they will lose in six games. It will be rumored that Muzz Patrick of Tacoma will relinquish his Tacoma franchise and take over as coach of the Cougars. Patterson will announce that Garriott has signed three more players from the Los Angeles area and that 37 players will attend training camp. Ray Robinson will retire. Ivan Irwin will be named to WHL all-star club.

MAY—Muzz Patrick will be confirmed in his new position. The Tyees will field basically the same club that won the WHL championship last year. Garriott will express concern about the club that has a six-game lead on the pack. Club president Arthur Cox will complain about the poor crowds. The fans will complain about Herman Zirullo's umpiring. United will win the coast title. Bert Buller will predict Philadelphia A's will win the AL pennant.

JUNE—Andy Anderson will invite us on a fishing trip—Cliff Heglin will harpoon harking sharks. The Tyees will take a 10-game lead in the WHL. Zirullo will be escorted from the park. Ferguson will come out of retirement. Some one will say that Marciano is a cheese champion. Christenberry will reverse Robinson's retirement.

JULY—Tyees will appeal for more fan support as they threaten to make a Shamrock of the WHL race. Shamrocks will take huge lead in Intercity Hockey League. Anderson will qualify for fishing ladder. Joe Dukowski will add more seats to Memorial Arena. Cougars will enter into a new arena rental agreement. Joe Walcott will regain heavyweight title.

AUGUST—Tyees will slacken off and Garriott will worry about 10-game lead. Shamrocks will clinch intercity box title. Bob Morrison will win his ninth city golf championship. Stan Tenning will pitch Chinese Students into city softball final with a broken finger. Cougars will announce that an agreement has been signed with Montreal Canadiens.

SEPTEMBER—Tyees will win WHL pennant. Garriott will go home before talking 1954 contract. Shamrocks will lose license final to Pileners. Ferguson will retire. Cougars will announce that Joe Evans, Bernie Strongman and Flori Gogean will attend training camp on a look-see basis. Hockey season ticket sale will start. Yankees will win the AL pennant by half a game from Cleveland Indians.

OCTOBER—Cougars will open WHL season with Strongman, Evans and Gogean in line-up. Lester Patrick will predict that Muzz Patrick will be "coach of the year." Eddie Dorohoy will get long-awaited chance in NHL with Montreal. Wally Milligan will injure his trick knee as United wins Dominion soccer title. Fred Hutchinson will predict Cougars will be in the playoffs. Yanks will win world series.

NOVEMBER—Norm Baker will announce his retirement. Kins will beat Alberni in hoop opener. Cougars will hit losing streak and fans will be up in arms. East will win the Grey Cup. Patterson will announce that several Tyees are eligible draft meat. Two players will quit United. Walcott will sign for re-turn match with Marciano.

DECEMBER—Cougars will keep winning streak alive until annual Christmas layoff. Milligan will injure knee. Kins will lose to Alberni. Patterson will head to annual baseball meeting. No Tyees will be drafted. Garriott will be signed at increase. Injury hex will hit Cougars. Crimson Tide will lose McKennie Cup. Commercial puck body will give away hams.

Single Game Grey Cup Favored by Scribes

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Changing the Grey Cup final from one game to a two-game, total-point series would ruin Canada's greatest sports spectacle, the country's sports writers and sportscasters contend.

On a Canadian Press ballot, they voted almost two to one against the proposal, discussed in football circles for some time. Most of those who favored the two games suggested one should be played in the West.

On the same ballot the writers and radio men were asked: "Do you consider that football is replacing hockey as Canada's major sport?"

The answer was an emphatic "no!" Only a handful of the 57 answering the question said they believe hockey is being supplanted. Many said they think football is inching up on hockey, particularly in the large cities, but pointed to thousands of towns and villages where it is not played and where hockey is still the big attraction.

They commented that there are still live provinces which haven't a senior football club.

On the Grey Cup question those who favored retaining the one-game set-up thought a series would lack the glamour of the present spectacle. Some who voted for two games said an Eastern final is unfair to the West, which should be rewarded for building up the game. Others thought a sudden-death game open to both East and West.

On the subject of football replacing hockey, voters on both sides criticized present-day hockey.

Wally Wails at Wacky Weather

This was to be a great day. This was to be the day when Victoria United got back into the Coast Soccer League battle after an enforced and unpopular six-week holiday. But Friday the skies opened up in all their fury and inundated Victoria with a torrential downpour that soaked, among other places, Athletic Park, scene of today's previously scheduled game between Wally Milligan's Victoria United and North Shore. Coach Wally, peering wistfully through a rain-splattered window, silently condemned the powers that sent the rain and forced cancellation of the game. However, it did him no good and Wally spent the day at home, bitterly water-proofing his boots in hopes that sometime before the end of the season, United will play another game. JENNINGS RUMORED AS NEW ESK GRID COACH

CALGARY (CP)—The Albertan says today in a sport page story that Bill Jennings of the University of Oklahoma coaching staff has the "inside track" to succeed Frank Filchock as coach of Edmonton Eskimos.

Jennings, 36, is a former member of Chicago Bears of the professional National Football League.

Ken Montgomery, president of the Edmonton Eskimo football club, has refused to confirm or deny the report.

Great Net Stars May Appear in Victoria

Victoria tennis partisans may get a chance this summer to watch four of the greatest in the game. Pancho Segura, Jack Kramer, Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor when Kramer brings his troupe to the Pacific

A Seattle report states that the troupe will open the Northwest portion of the tour at Seattle on May 19 and play matches in Portland, Vancouver and possibly Tacoma.

Victoria lawn tennis and badminton officials said today that if and when the foursome reaches Seattle, they will make every effort to bring them to Victoria.

A Victoria appearance would depend on the terms Kramer sets down. However, local officials feel the group would be a great drawing card and that it would not be too difficult to meet Kramer's terms.

Both Kramer and Segura, along with Pancho Gonzales, played exhibition matches in this city two years ago.

The Aussie wizards, Sedgman and McGregor, recently retained the Davis Cup for Australia with a smashing 4-1 victory over the U.S.

During the tour it will be Kramer and Segura against the two Australians who signed with Kramer's group for $100,000 this week.

THE FABULOUS BABE HERMAN—DAFFY OR GENIUS?

Now the Yankees Have Him

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—The amazing performances of a "clown" named Casey Stengel may be a basic reason, but the fact stands that there is very little jocular comment over the hiring by the New York Yankees of Floyd Caves (Babe) Herman as a scout.

The "Babe," in case you don't remember, was one of the Brooklyn Dodger "Daffiness" boys two decades ago. He's the fellow who invented three men on a base and countless other baseball belly-splitters.

One of the choice history gems concerns the time he asked a writer for a match as he whipped a cigar butt from his pocket. Then, puffing experimentally, the Babe told the startled writer: "Never mind, it's lit."

And another related his angry retort when a salesman tried to sell him a set of encyclopedias as:

"Listen, my kids is all healthy and can walk to school!"

In 1949, B.C., meaning "Before Casey," tales like those got a lot of yuks. But baseball people are inclined to agree, since Stengel the "clown" won four world championships in a row, that the line between daffiness and genius is thinner than the ham in a drug store sandwich.

"I hate to spoil good stories," the Babe holds as he looks back on his checkered career, "but a lot of that stuff they tell on me is untrue. Say, like that story about the cigar out of my pocket."

Didn't it happen?

"Well, just the tip of it was lit," the Babe hems. "I thought it was out and stuck it in my pocket for a few moments. Then when I put it back in my mouth, you see, I didn't need a match. It was still lit deep inside."

In the pre-Stengel era, that explanation would have drawn a fresh load of howls. Now the Babe will probably receive apologies and belated expressions of hope that his suit wasn't scorched.

"And that story about me leaving my boy at the park until late at night because I forgot him," the Babe says. "That was all wrong, too."

"Well," he admits, "I didn't leave him long. I had only gone about two and a half blocks from the park."

One of the other legendary faults of the Babe was his ability to be passed on the bases by his teammates. But Herman can explain those, too. Well, a couple of them, anyhow.

Cougars Gain, But Remain in Cellar

Rally to Tie Canucks, Catch Flyers

Victoria 1, Vancouver 1

Victoria Cougars moved a notch up the Western Hockey ladder Friday night. They moved from the cellar into a tie for the cellar.

Battling to a 1-1 draw with the Vancouver Canucks in Vancouver, Eddie Dorohoy's beleaguered Cats used the one point to catch up with the idle Edmonton Flyers, forcing a seventh-place deadlock.

Vancouver moved to within two points of the first-place Saskatchewan Quakers.

In contrast to the New Year's Day debacle when Vancouver came from behind to erase a Victoria lead and put the snatch on a 4-3 victory, it was the Cougars turn to come from behind Friday.

JERRY HOT

Canucks roundly outplayed the Cougars for the first two periods, being balked only by Jerry Cotnoir's goal keeping.

Vancouver took a 1-0 lead in the second period on Ray Manson's goal but the Cougars came through in the third period. Colin Kilburn scoring the goal that sent the clubs home with no decision.

Emil Francis was the block Cougars stumbled over most often as the little netminder was dazzling when he had to be, turning aside thrust after thrust by the win-hungry Cougars. He was particularly brilliant in the third period when the Cougars took over the offensive and threw everything into an effort to score the untidy goal.

Not to be outdone by his opposite number, Cotnoir was superb in the second period, kicking out four straight shots before Manson beat him with a short drive from the side of the net. The play was set up by Eddie Leier and Hugh Currie.

KILBURN SCORES

The lone Cougar goal culminated a furious attack on the Vancouver nets. Kilburn sliding a rebound behind Francis after a faceoff in front of the goal. Jim Fairburn and Doug Anderson drew assists on the play. Vancouver was a man short at the time, Harry Dick sitting out a minor penalty for downing Dorohoy.

Francis drew minor and misconduct penalties in the second period. Ivan Irwin, attempting to corral a sliding puck, bumped into Francis when he was unable to stop. A round of pushing followed and both participants were given minors by referee Bill Knott. Francis sassed Knott and was given an additional 10 minutes.

AT NANAIMO TONIGHT

After meeting twice in two days, the clubs go at it again tonight with nothing at stake. They will play an exhibition game at Nanaimo Civic Arena, main purpose of the game being to see if Nanaimo hockey interest is sufficiently high to merit a possible WHL franchise in the future.

Davis Scores Garden Victory

NEW YORK (UP)—Featherweight Teddy (Red Top) Davis, following an impressive 10-round decision over Fabiez Chavez, said today through manager Mushky Salow that he will take on all comers up to 135 pounds, including lightweight champion Jimmy Carter.

Davis, sixth-ranked featherweight contender, said he hoped to be matched with other featherweights but figured he would have to campaign with lightweights if he hoped to get frequent bouts. Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler currently is in the army.

Davis, 13½, out-labbed and out-fought Chavez, 13½, ranked No. 10, in the featured 10-rounder of the new year's first card at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

REMARKABLE PERFORMANCE

Aussie Runner Near Mile Mark

MELBOURNE (AP)—John Landy of Melbourne University ran another remarkable mile at Olympic Park today, covering the distance in 4:02.4 over a breeze-swept brick-dust track.

This compares with Gunder Haegg's world mile record of 4:01.4 set in Sweden in July, 1945.

Landy, Australia's 22-year-old Olympic runner, ran the mile on the same track in 4:02.1 Dec. 13. All four official timers clocked Landy today in exactly the same time, which is unusual.

Three official timers also clocked him exactly at 3:44.4 for the 1,500 metres which compares to Haegg's world record of 3:43. It was said to be the fastest 1,500 ever run in the course of a mile race.

There were 14 starlets in the inter-club meet but the nearest was fully 200 yards behind Landy at the finish.

Landy ran with a severe cold which almost caused him to pass up the meet.

Mary Chayko Trundles Fivepin Tourney High

By RON COULTER
Mary Chayko ushered in the new year in a big way at Capital City Bowldrome Thursday.

Rolling in the annual fivepin tournament with a 46-handicap, Mary ran up games of 287, 274 and 289, for a total score of 850, to take the lead in the A singles events. Bowling doubles in the next shift she racked up games of 300, 293, 321, for a 914 triple. She also claims a 796 and a 774 total in the tournament.

In the team events The Strikers are leading the A section with a three-game total of 3,836, and single tournament game of 379.

Curling Tips

By BONSPIELER

This is the fifth in a series dealing with the fine points of curling, written by a man who is well versed in the game that is growing in interest on Vancouver Island.

The instructional articles, each dealing with a single facet of the mechanics of curling, will appear in The Times regularly, and are guaranteed to make a first-class curler out of the most inexperienced novice if they are followed religiously.

Cut them out and save them—they may save your game.

RIGHT UP THE BROOM HANDLE

One thing you would notice when you watched Gary Thode and his Canadian school-champs from Saskatchewan perform, is that when each member of the team delivers a stone, he seems to throw his whole body and soul as well as his stone, right up the broom handle. The co-ordination is so finely adjusted and their delivery motion so smooth and unburied that their stones seem to flow from them like cream from a jug.

To achieve this has required countless hours of practice, something that each of us must be willing to devote time to if any degree of perfection is to be reached. Too many boys today want to be good at all sports. They play in all, but perfect none. Pick out one sport. Live it! Sleep it! Eat it! Dream it! And work at it if you want to be good at it. There are very few Jim Thorpes and Lionel Conachers!

Once you have reached the top of your backswing concentrate on one thing only... swing that rock toward the broom... forget all else. The broom is your target... keep it in mind and in sight. Turn the hands of the stone during your forward motion so that it is turning as it flows off the tips of your fingers.

Swing your rock ahead of the body so that when it touches the ice your right arm is stretched forward and ahead of you. Keep in behind the stone. Above all, do not set it down on the ice under your body and ride it. Keep one thing in mind—swing—swing—swing—then reach—reach—reach. Keep that right leg stretched out straight behind you and the right arm stretched out ahead of you. Don't double it up and ride out on your right knee or you will become a "pusher" for certain.

Browns Get MVP Shortstop

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Rookie Bill Hunter, who owner Bill Veeck hopes will be his regular shortstop next year, has signed with St. Louis Browns for a reported $100,000. Hunter had been a member of Brooklyn Dodgers organization and came to the Browns this year for $100,000 cash and three players—outfielder Ray Coleman, pitcher Bob Mahoney, and shortstop Stan Rojek.

He hit .290 with Fort Worth in the Texas League last summer and was voted most valuable in the league.

Veeck said he believes that with Hunter at short and Bobby Young at second he will have one of the best double-play combinations in the American League.

Racqueteters Eye Top Tournaments

A column that has the misfortune to follow the two most important holidays of the year, when even badminton takes second place, presents a bit of a problem. It is not so much a question of what to write about but how realistic one ought to be while still under the influence of the festive period.

For instance, it is quite a shock to realize that the advent of Christmas heralds the half-way mark of the season. It seems only yesterday that reference was being made to squeaking joints, labored breathing and the ubiquitous rubbing liniment. Well, like many other things, such thoughts now belong to the past and it is to the future we must look.

Players will find that the second half of the season will be more exacting and strenuous than the first. The most important event will undoubtedly be the annual city championships scheduled for February. Although the V.L.T. & B.

SECOND START

Sonny Tufts, Barbara Payton In Hollywood

BY ALINE MOSBY
British United Press
Movie Writer

On a movie set at Goldwyn Studio in Hollywood today, two movie celebrities are making a second start in the land of heart-breaks and disappointments.

One is Barbara Payton—of that famous triangle with Franchot Tone and Tom Neal—and the other is actor Sonny Tufts.

Both found rough going in the plaster city, and had to go to England before they found what they call "stature."

After her headlined romances and divorce, Barbara hurried to England to play two Barbara Paytons, of all things, in a movie entitled, "The Four-Sided Triangle." She was received, with enthusiasm in England, and, as she puts it with dignity, "They treated me like a lady over there."

Now the blonde Bab is back in town to co-star with Tufts in an independent production called, "Run For The Hills." She says she's staying out of night-clubs, and she hopes, out of trouble. Her once platinum blonde hair is now a subdued ash blonde. She's lost a bit of weight and has adopted a rather serious air.

Tufts, you may recall, used to be one of those bad boys of Hollywood. He was famed as a party boy who cut up behind the camera more than in front. Now he's back in Hollywood looking a bit older and wiser, and with a touch of a British accent.

"I feel that English movies will show Hollywood what I could do," he says. "I was always playing the dumb, wacky guy in movies in Hollywood. The public got fed up with it, and so did I."

Appearing in the production are Michael Rothery, Kraen Kader, Robert Tabor, Diana Ricardo, Dewey Harless, Doris Sheridan, Alexander Gray, William Falowfield, Owen Downes, Maurice Corbett, Gordon Matthews, Myrriam Evans and Ernest Keller.

Jack Ammon is director of the play. He has had much experience in theatrical work, having started on an acting career at 18, and having had directing duties with such prominent art-

Famous Violin To Be Heard Here

One of the most brilliant violinists of his generation, Ossy Renardy, who will appear here on Tuesday, Jan. 13, at the Royal Theatre, for Famous Artists, is equally famous in Europe and America. In concert and on records, his dazzling virtuosity and superb musicianship have won the admiration of press and public. He is the owner of the fabulous Guarneri del Gesu violin, made in 1743, called the "Cannon Joseph." The violin, said to have belonged to Paganini, is valued at over $50,000. Renardy has also appeared with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony under Dimitri Mitropoulos, with the Rochester Philharmonic both at home and on tour, with the St. Louis Symphony and Houston Symphony. During the summer of both 1949 and 1950, the violinist toured Scandinavia; in 1951 he went abroad for recordings in London and Holland.

Appearing in the production are Michael Rothery, Kraen Kader, Robert Tabor, Diana Ricardo, Dewey Harless, Doris Sheridan, Alexander Gray, William Falowfield, Owen Downes, Maurice Corbett, Gordon Matthews, Myrriam Evans and Ernest Keller.

TWO for the SHOW

By PHIL LEE

AA (Gossip class) BR (Worthwhile) (B For Boring, Days) A (Don't Miss) C (To put in time)

(A) "MILLION DOLLAR MERMAID" (Royal): Although Esther Williams as "Australasian" turn-of-the-century swimming star is enchanting it is the technicolor photography directed by George J. Folsey that makes you catch your breath with a special, low bow to Busby Berkeley for his unbelievably staged fountain and smoke numbers.

For the record, even without the marvels of Technicolor "Million Dollar Mermaid" would be a good show because it was basically a good story. The plot tells the life of Annette Kellerman, who came to America to find fame and fortune. Born with an infirmity, she used the sport of swimming as a means of strengthening her body and regaining her health. So great was her prowess that she eventually captured the Australian amateur swim title. She swam to recognition by being the first woman to swim 25 miles down the Thames River. She also became the first woman to do away with the voluminous female swimming togs of her day in favor of what was to be the forerunner of our modern one-piece bathing suit.

Taken over by showman James Sullivan—played by Victor Mature—Annette Kellerman swims to fame in a carnival act. Finally she winds up as one of the star turns on the stage of New York's famed and revered old Hippodrome.

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—A Dallas housewife asked a justice of the peace today if she could make her New Year's resolution in his presence.

Justice Bill Richburg thought it was a good idea and asked her to return Monday for the occasion. The housewife wants to resolve to treat her husband better during 1953.

Richburg said during 1952 she appeared before him twice for cutting her husband with a knife and for tossing a pan of lye water on him.

Coleman was awakened by the screams of his wife, Shirley, who had been aroused by the touch of a man's hand.

During the chase, the prowler jumped hedges and dodged shrubbery to avoid pursuit.

... Gebührenpflicht

A letter from a friend currently attending Heidelberg University arrived at CKDA for newsmen Roy Jacques a few days ago.

Roy drew our attention to the wording used on the device employed by the West German postal authorities to cancel the postage stamp.

The words were ... "RUNDUNK—hore. Ist sehr wichtig doch ... Ist gebührenpflicht!"

We had Roy translate: "RADIO—it is important that you listen to it ... It is your BIRTHRIGHT!"

It was "gebührenpflicht" that got us.

To be able to listen to their radio—"liberated" version—is, according to the postal authorities of West Germany, at least, the birthright of the free German people.

They should know. The Germans, the Austrians, the Poles, the French, the Latvians and Danes and Belgians and Lithuanians and Estonians and the Dutch—they should all know.

These people will all recall that one of the first steps of the Dictator when he took over their country was to seize the radio stations, and pervert them to his own use.

These people will all recall—those of them who loved their freedom—listening in dark cellars to secret radio receivers tuned to FREE radio.

These people will all recall that death was the penalty for indulging in the luxury of tuning in the truth on the B.B.C., Radio Free Europe, the Voice of America.

Their only contact with the truth and the hope that the truth brought them was made via FREE radio, under the shadow of the firing squad.

Free radio. ...

Their "gebührenpflicht"—their birthright.

We of the North American continent and the British Commonwealth of Nations have never known any other kind of radio.

Our man in the street has had no cause to think of free radio in terms of anything other than a foregone conclusion—something that was and is and always shall be.

We would have to be deprived of this "birthright," before we could be made to realize what it means to us.

So—as we go into yet another year of the enjoyment of our "birthright," free radio, let us give some thought to this "gebührenpflicht" of ours—this medium of publication, which like the free press, is so constituted in the countries of what we now call "the West," that its existence cannot be tolerated by the Dictator.

It's worth a little thought.

Who Is the Storybook Heroine?

By taking a pencil, starting at dot 1 and drawing a continuous line from dot to dot, consecutively, you will make a famous storybook heroine.

PUZZLES & PASTIMES

ANAGRAMABLE FOSER

In this puzzle you are given a word and an additional letter and are required to make a new word out of the combined letters. To do so you must, of course, rearrange the letters. For example: CRIED plus T rearranged will form DIRECT. Now test your wits on the following:

1. SAUCE plus C is _____?
2. STAMEN plus L is _____?
3. BREED plus V is _____?
4. DEPT plus S is _____?
5. LIVER plus E is _____?
6. COAST plus C is _____?
7. IOTA plus R is _____?

PAPER DUEL

This will enliven any occasion. Place two guests facing each other, kneeling on the floor. Blindfold and give each a newspaper rolled up lengthwise. Then at the sound of a single, each endeavors to "swat" his "blind" opponent, and to dodge return blows. First to score 10 hits is the winner.

YULE BIRTHDAYS

John and Joan are two of those folks who have birthdays at Christmas time, and thus feel they are missing something. Their combined ages equal 49 years. Now if John is twice the age that Joan was when he was as old as she is now, how old is each now?

SHORT TALE

Whenever Mr. Slice, who is rather absent-minded, forgets his own party-line number, he thinks of this experience and presto, the number comes to mind. Last year Mr. Slice went hunting and killed a jay-bird. That night he and his wife ate the bird for supper. What is their phone number?

Uncle Bob

Last week we had to go through more than 1,500 Christmas letters for the coloring contest. It was a lot of work but a lot of fun. I wish there was some way you could have seen them all.

Some of the entries were mounted and had golden Christmas stars all over them. Others were made up into nice little books. It was fun watching the judges trying to make the final decision out of so many entries. We get some stories about Christmas letters and Christmas holiday recipes every week though. Thanks for all the Christmas cards. I bet there wasn't an uncle in Victoria that received more cards from nephews and nieces than Uncle Bob did. I felt flattered.

Let's all welcome as new members to the club:

- Brenda Buller, 10; Dolores Smith, 11; Shenidon J. Cooley, 9; Jocelyn Frances Murray, 11; Tillicum School; Winona Butler, 8; St. Ann's Academy; Alex Bruce Murray, 9; Tillicum School; Carol L. Times Club

Hope you had a happy Christmas and best wishes for the New Year. As you know entries for the weekly prizes can be anything you care to send in.

We are getting more essays, poems and stories, lots of drawings and colorings. It is quite evident the members like doing something they prefer to do than something set as a competition. We get some stories about Christmas letters and Christmas holiday recipes every week though. Thanks for all the Christmas cards. Information on Many Things

Jerusalem first became a Jewish capital under David, about 1000 B.C. There are more than 100 varieties of potatoes in the natural state, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica. Jesse James, notorious outlaw, was killed April 3, 1882. There was no crown at the coronation of England's King Henry III. Cobras are deaf and cannot hear the snake charmer's music. It has been estimated that 3,000,000 bats fly out of the Caribbean Caverns, New Mexico, each night during the summer. The U.S. produces more than $1,000,000,000 worth of pig iron annually, a greater value than any other single manufactured product. Four cents of the average consumer's dollar goes for medical care in the United States. It is said that "Ach du lieber Augustin," composed in 1770, was the first waltz. In recognition of his services, Congress granted to Lafayette a township of land in Florida. The art of making leather goes back to about 2000 B.C. It has been estimated that about four men of every 100 are partly or completely blind. One of the largest copper-producing areas in the world is the Katanga district of the Belgian Congo. Some persons who are color blind see all colors as grey, some cannot see blue or yellow, but most fail to see only red and green. It takes about two acres of farm crops per person to feed the United States.

Changing Victoria Looks at Record

Quarter Century of Progress Will Be Continued in 1953, City Hall New Year Forecast

By AILEEN CAMPBELL

Victoria in the past quarter of a century has grown by leaps and bounds. And according to Ald. Arthur Dowell, chairman of last year's city lands committee, "it hasn't stopped growing yet." He told an election meeting last month that the city's potentialities are as great as ever.

Mayor Claude Harrison today expressed the belief that the city's general progress would continue in 1953 and be as great in the next 25 years as it was in the past.

In the meantime, statistics prove that the Victorians who bemoans "Victoria isn't like it used to be, I go downtown and don't meet a soul I know any more..." is not idly babbling.

And natives speak of the growth and change with a mixture of pride and sorrow.

Publicity Bureau and Chamber of Commerce officials stress it with forgivable exaggeration at times. City fathers in giving population estimates are also inclined to err on the side of more rather than less, as the 1951 census revealed.

FOR THE RECORD

But for the record: Since 1927—25 years ago—Victoria has boosted its population more than a fifth. It has nearly doubled the number of eligible voters. It has increased its annual budget two and a half times. In 1927 there were less than 39,082 people here. The 1951 census gives a population of 50,774.

The voters' list of 1927 contained 11,256 names. Today it holds 20,143 names.

"The list is holding its gains, which is most significant," according to City Clerk Frank Hunter. "And the bulk of those eligible voters are property owners."

The city's annual budget was $2,614,106. In 1952 it stood at $6,790,255.

In 1927, 578 permits were issued for construction valued at $2,524,741. Approximately 1,777 permits were issued during 1952 for construction amounting to $4,652,418.

Of course as everything grows so does the tax rate. It was 38 mills 25 years ago. The 1952 rate was 56 1/2.

Assessment on land and improvements was $33,282,000 in 1927. Last year it was $66,624,000. Taxes in those days were collected on basis of 100 per cent on land and 50 per cent on improvements. Today it is on 100 per cent on land and 75 per cent on improvements, according to Assessor-Collector A. G. Joyce.

In 1927 assessments were at a lower ebb than in '27—$44,000,000. The year 1927 saw a decided building boom—before the crash of '29. Permits were issued for erection of the grain elevator, Christ Church Cathedral, the provincial government printing bureau, three public garages and an addition to St. Joseph's Hospital.

In his annual report the building inspector of that day advised that the "old jail would shortly be demolished." It was and the new S. J. Willis High School is now located on the site.

NEW HOMES, NEW APARTMENTS

Eighty dwellings and 220 private garages were built in 1927—last year saw permits issued for 91 dwellings, 11 apartment blocks and 125 private garages in Victoria.

The Memorial Arena, B.C. Power Commission, new post office, Douglas Building, additions to St. Joseph's Hospital and Hudson's Bay Co. store, erection of Woodward's store, the library addition, Black Ball Ferry building and many schools are among the big construction jobs that have changed Victoria's landscape in intervening years.

'Don't Mine the Land---Farm It'

Too Much Wasted by Careless Handling Says Nigel Kingscote, Who Has Been Farming At Cowichan From Boyhood

"Liquid gold," a term often used for oil, can be applied to dairy things, too, according to dairy farmer Nigel Kingscote of Cowichan Bay. The animal excreta which drains off the barn floor can put gold in your pocket by doubling crop yields if saved and sprayed on your land.

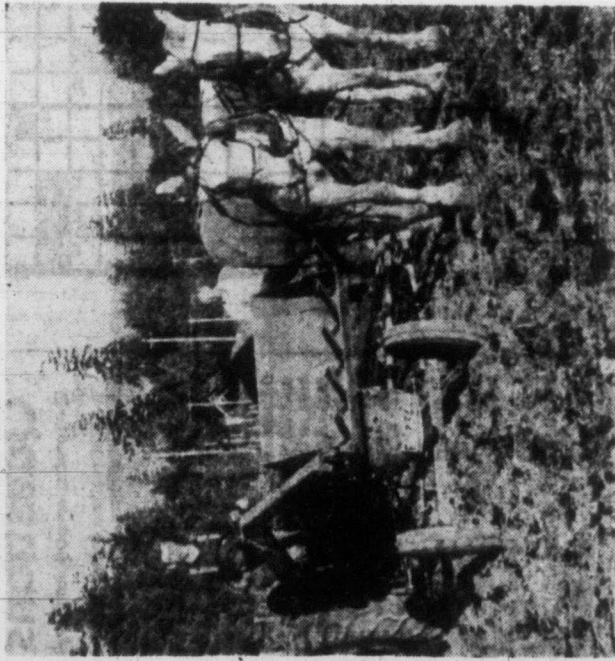

"Too much manure is wasted by careless handling," Nigel states.

A gutter behind the stalls of the Kingscote barn carries the fluid to a huge concrete liquid manure tank located underground a few feet from the barn. A 200-gallon mobile pump equipped with a gasoline-powered engine, removes the manure from the big tank for spraying on the fields. Manure solids are carried from the stalls via an overhead trolley and dumped in a concrete trough. Shredded for use as bedding by the pigs or for fertilizer by the sheep, it retains its value a long time.

Nigel Kingscote's parents brought him to Vancouver Island when he was about 18 months old. The family settled on the Bay. Nigel now farms but the latter's suggestion to the property wasn't as simple as it sounds. Believing his son would leave the farm, the elder Kingscote sold all but nine acres.

NOW A DAIRYMAN

Nigel started a piggery on those nine acres, and built up a breeding herd of 14 sows. He soon found there was little money in live weight hogs so installed a zinc-lined slaughter pen, scalding, butchering, smoke house, sausage grinder, and cold storage room to turn out bacon, ham and sausages. Although he has now abandoned the pig business for dairying, he saved all this equipment and still butchers the occasional porker for family use.

But by bit, as Nigel saved the money, he bought back his father's original land until he had it all again. Most of it was in clearing timber so he set about clearing enough to handle his projected dairy herd. With about 35 acres still to go, clearing operations are still going on today.

"I wouldn't want to go through it all again," Nigel said, but one gathers he'd start from scratch once more if he had to.

"I don't mind saying things, just in case I might need them," Kingscote built some of his buildings from odds and ends picked up along the shore of Cowichan Bay. Others are made of heavy lumber and shakes he cut himself. Lumber for the cow barn came from Kingscote logs Nigel had sawn at a small mill down the road. Old crankcase oil from the farm machines has been used with "success to keep roof shingles or shakes from warping."

CAREFUL PLANNING

Believing in building things to last, Nigel has constructed a brick and concrete milk house, complete with stainless steel milk cooler and an electric hot-water heater, which appears to be about the last word in that type of structure. His special pride is a double-walled root house, packed with insulating sawdust in between, designed so that air enters through a vent at the side and is carried down to the bottom from where it circulates up through the structure to an opening in the ceiling. Another instance of proper planning, the basis of good farm management.

Dorothy Kingscote takes as much pleasure in farm efficiency as her husband does.

"We don't mine our land, we farm it," she said proudly.

They have a family of two boys (Wilfred 17 and John 4) and two girls (Joyce 15 and Mary 13) who can be pretty handy around a farm, too.

One of Nigel's prize possessions is his fine team of grey horses. He prefers horse power to tractor power for many jobs.

"When I am short of help for haying I use my team to haul the loader," he said, "you don't have to drive them, they march up and down the windrows themselves."

Another advantage I learned, was that horses operate on stuff you can grow on the farm. What they don't use falls back on the land as fertilizer. "Just how me the tractor that can do that," Nigel added.

GARDENING

Wireworms Often Responsible for Seeds not Developing white at first. After molting and feeding, they turn to yellow and then brown. The shell becomes hard and shiny and they are often found in the soil, curled up like a watch spring.

SEEDLINGS

In April-May, when newly-planted seeds are just germinating, wireworms feed on the seedlings. They especially like corn and peas. Many times your seed merchant is blamed for seeds which did not come up when, as a matter of fact, they germinated quite well, but were eaten up by wireworms either before or immediately after they came through the ground.

Quite often, little seedlings were believed to have "damped-off" through a disease infestation, while the real reason was an unnoticed attack by a few wireworms which ate the roots and caused the little plants to shrivel and die overnight. This often happens when soil that has not been sterilized or treated, is used for starting seeds indoors.

Wireworms have the habit of boring through the outer layers of seeds, stems or roots, and feeding only on the inner, more succulent portions. In fact, they swallow their food only in liquid form, preventing it to some extent in the digesting it to some extent in the mouth. Solid plant particles or soil have never been found inside a wireworm.

PLANT ROOTS

In May-June, when many plants are making a fast good growth, they have to extend their root growth to cope with the demand for a full supply of food and water. Many plants suffer at this time from the unobserved infestation of wireworms. By feeding on the roots, these worms destroy a great percentage of them which the plant cannot replace. This attack (unseen) causes the plants to become stunted; the growth to cease almost entirely; and a cessation of the normal function of the plant.

In many instances, the plant appears to be diseased. Corn leaves turn reddish-green; tomato leaves curl; potato gets mildew; asparagus wilt; beans and lettuce look blighted.

TUBERS—ROOTS

In June-July, wireworms seem to change their taste for food and switch to potatoes, carrots, radishes and dahlias. At this time, the pest seems to desire the food found just under the skin of the root part of the vegetable or flower. In almost every instance, the wireworms work in groups on one large root, leaving it tunnelled and scarred. This attack does not do any actual harm to the plant, but with veg-tables, like potatoes or carrots, the roots' appearance is spoiled and much is wasted in preparation for cooking.

BULBS

In September-October, when the new roots of almost all the spring flowering bulbs commence to grow, wireworms are liable to eat and destroy a great percentage of them.

Their favorite bulbs seem to be tulips and hyacinths although lilies and narcissi get plenty of attention, too. In fact I cannot distinctly remember any bulb which I have not found infested with wireworms at some time or other—even the onion-garlic family gets its share of attention.

LAWNS

When a new lawn is planted, and starts to grow well, it appears to be all right until after the second mowing when brown spots appear. If the gardener asks the store clerk what is the matter, the reply is invariably, "Oh, yes! Brown spots!"

A disease? Use a fungicide—and all the time the young wireworms are feeding, unobserved, on the tasty roots of the grass plants.

Pioneer Thomson Family Founded St. Stephen's

Not many who travel out Mount Newton today can realize what that part of the country looked like 100 years ago when St. Stephen's Church was built.

Now many beautiful homes line the roadway, but the aisle of trees which shaded it on either side until only a short time ago, have fallen to the axe of so-called progress.

The rocks have gone that make a golden twilight along the Indian Reserve.

But it is a pleasant district still for there are forest trees and native flora within the confines of private property, and still, Mount Newton stands proudly untouched, the park of which John Dean has handed down to posterity for all time.

It is more than 100 years ago that St. Stephen's Church was built on land owned by William Thomson who had come from Scotland to seek his fortune at the Hudson's Bay territory of the Far West.

Their ship sailed far off her course in a storm at the entrance to Back Bay Sound. The crew managed to get ashore on logs of rum which had been washed overboard and which they stowed in for fear that the Indians would seize them, too.

St. Stephen's Church, Mount Newton and go mad with the drink. The natives were mad enough as it was and kept the sailors as slaves for six months.

Eventually William Thomson set out from Fort Victoria to look the country over and, following the Indian trail, found his way to Mount Newton, and made up his mind that the surrounding country should be his home. Returning to the Fort he applied for 1,000 acres of land, circumstances especially hard for the young mother, wolves and bears prowled around at night and sometimes by day. Bears, too, were occasional visitors, and more than once the intrepid young woman ran out to the rescue of the livestock, not always successfully.

The land was cleared for many acres around. The first 15 children, ten boys and five girls, came in due time the log cabin gave place to a large, comfortable dwelling.

FIRST CHRISTENINGS

The story of the Thomsons is bound up in that of St. Stephen's Church, for they were instrumental in having it built, clearing the land for it, felling the trees, cutting the timber and fashioning the little structure which stands today much as it was then.

The Thomson children were the first to be christened there. But there have been many christenings since and many marriages, and every year there are many interested on-lookers who come from far away to see this oldest of churches in British Columbia. In the churchyard where in spring the wild flowers make a lovely carpet, the headstones give evidence of the age of the church, and to the distinguished dead who have worshipped there.

It is indeed a Shrine of Memory that has not changed in 100 years.

Canadian Skaters Win Spotlight in Ice Cycles Show

Peggy Bauer, Joe Satta, Jane Kirby, Marshall Garrett, Trixi fly through the air with the greatest of ease in eighth edition of Ice Cycles.

BY PETER LOUDEN

"Ice Cycles of 1953" might be an American production, but if every Canadian in the show was wearing a maple leaf the effect would be like a fall day in Beacon Hill Park. Every province and most cities are represented somewhere in the huge cast, and even the stars of the show have in many cases been recruited from this country.

From where else but Quebec could come John LeBecque? Only a French-Canadian could boast a name of such phonetic appeal. LeBecque and Satta are comedy headliners.

Canada's prettiest contribution and another star is Jane Kirby of Ottawa, who, with her ice-partner, Marshall Garrett of Vancouver, lend their skill to the courtship of the Ice Cycles of 1953 the costumes cost $118,000.

The show lives in a train of nine cars, has a cast of 100 and a technical crew of 50.

The Ice Cycles takes in more money at the gate annually than any three major league baseball clubs.

The unparalleled production costs reveal themselves later in this article. It suffices here to point out that no expense is spared when it comes to "effect." One dress might cost $1,500, and when a need for mechanical horses was met, it cost $20,000 for four . . . they do everything but eat hay.

PRODUCED BY IRISHMAN

Ice Cycles is produced by a big Irishman named John H. Harris. He took over the show when it was an ice show, and turned it into a skating show, the world's largest.

A new girl is first given a complete physical and then what her best weight is. She is then "gorged" until she hits that weight and then is fitted for costumes. She must maintain the same measurements or her costume "will tell."

What keeps the show alive is his constant search for new talent.

Tryouts will be given 3,000 girls and boys, auditions being held in every city the show visits. Ability, a musical ear, family background and excellent health are necessities. If chosen, the aspirant either goes with the show or to a skating school where he or she earns while learning.

Teachers with the show are Nate Walley, world's professional figure-skating champion, and the team of Bob Dench and Rosemary Stewart, Olympic champions. It costs $25,000 to develop a skater to Ice Cycles top standards.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JANUARY 3, 1953 11

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

The City of Victoria has kindly consented to allow its motto to be used by HMCS Beacon Hill, the friendly frigate. I must confess that up to the moment this news was released, I did not know the City of Victoria's motto, which turns out to be "Always Free."

What I would like to know is, what is free? If the city fathers are giving something away, I would like to know where to line up to get my share.

May we return to the New Father department, briefly, today?

A nurse reports that the Royal Jubilee maternity room had an unusually high quota of expectant fathers the other night. One of them, to cover his nervousness, said: "I see we're all in the same boat."

This tickled the nurse's sense of humor, because the statement was almost literally true.

Out of a recent "batch" of 15 fathers, seven WERE in the same boat—or ship, to be more accurate—HMCS Sioux.

A constituent who is an earnest student of the public prints finds himself confused by science.

The discovery of the fish with the jaw-breaking name—coelacanth, no doubt pronounced Chumley—has thrown him for a loss.

"They say this fish is the missing link," he says. "Thus it would appear that I am descended from a fish."

"Just the other day, I read another story which proved that white rats have reasoning power, and therefore it is quite likely that I am descended from a white rat."

"Also, I have been told on good authority that I am descended from a monkey."

"I am getting tired of all this, and if the scientists do not mind, I will go back to being descended from my grandfather."

It appears that J. G. Endicott, the peregrinating expatriate, will pick up his $25,000 present from Father Joe tax-free.

This is because it is regarded as a gift, not earned income. Having listened to Mr. Endicott in action, I cannot agree with this decision. Mr. Endicott works very hard for Father Joe, and certainly has earned every penny of the money.

In fact, it is so definitely "earned income," I think he should be taxed 100 cents on the dollar.

Romance Rides the Trade Winds

With his bride of one month, Jim Squire of Victoria is sailing southward from California in the schooner Te Hongi. Mr. and Mrs. Squire (inset), plan a five-year vagabond voyage which will eventually take them around the world.

ROMANCE AT HELM

TE HONGI'S MASTER SHIPS NEW MATE

Romance is at the helm of the gaff-rigged schooner Te Hongi, out of Coquedo, California, for the South Seas and a voyage around the world.

Te Hongi's owner and skipper, Jim Squire of Victoria, has a new first mate — the former Mary Clayards, daughter of Lieut. Cmdr. and Mrs. L. G. Clayards, HMC Dockyard, Esquimalt.

They were married in Coronado on Dec. 1 and sailed southward Dec. 18. The only other "crew member" on their vagabond voyage, which will take about five years, is a kitten.

First port of call for Jim and Mary after they left California was at the Guadalupe Islands, off the coast of Mexico. Now they are on their way to the Marquesas, 3,150 miles southwest.

CROSSED EQUATOR NEW YEAR'S

They hope to "ride" the trade winds, and arrive at the Marquesas about the end of this month. It is believed they crossed the Equator on New Year's Day. From the Islands, their route will take them to Tuamotu archipelago; Tahiti; Bara-Bara; the Cook Islands of Aitutaki and Rarotonga; British Samoa; the Tonga Island group; and then Auckland, where Te Hongi will be refitted.

The Squires then plan to sail across the top of Australia, through Torres Strait, to Noumea in Ceylon.

Te Hongi was built in New Zealand, and sailed to Victoria by Jacques Markwalder, from whom she was purchased by Mr. Squire about a year ago.

The schooner is 43 feet overall, 38 feet at the waterline, with a 10-foot beam. Her auxiliary power is a 10-h.p. diesel which gives her five knots.

Six Delegates To CCL Parley

Victoria unions will send six delegates to the B.C. Federation of Labor (CCL) convention in Vancouver January 10 and 11.

Edwin Haw and Ranjit Singh will represent the Victoria Labor Council. Local 1-118 of the International Woodworkers of America will send William Muir, first vice-president; George Williams, third vice-president; Jack Peace and Leo Rowney.

SPRING-LIKE WEATHER SMILES FOR FORTUNATE VICTORIANS

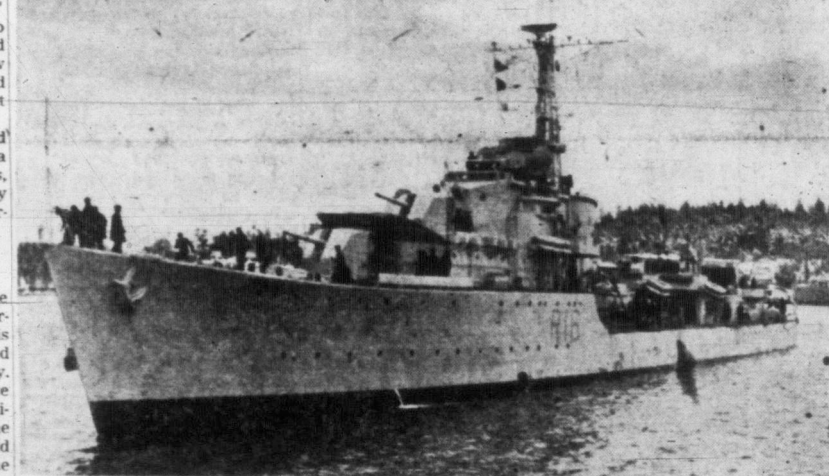

A small slice of summer reached Victoria early today and is likely to stay for the next two days, according to the weatherman.

At press time the official thermometer at Gonzales Observatory indicated 51 degrees and "could go a couple of degrees higher," the weatherman said.

Temperatures began to rise Friday night with the passage of a warm front, and reached 50 degrees at 1.30 a.m. today. They will range between 45 and 50 degrees for the next 24 hours.

More rain has been forecast, however. Tonight will be cloudy, and rain is expected to fall from early Sunday morning to Sunday afternoon, then taper off to showers. Easterly winds of 20 to 25 miles per hour will veer to southwest 20 during the day.

Unlike 1952, all-time record dry year for Victoria, 1953 started off with a substantial rain. Between 10.30 p.m. Thursday at 3 a.m. today a total of 1.98 inches fell, the weatherman said.

$5,000,000 Job for HMC Dockyard

HMCS Crescent, destroyer in the Atlantic command of the Canadian Navy, will arrive at Esquimalt early in February for conversion to anti-submarine escort. She will be armed and equipped along similar lines to HMCS Algonquin, on which work is nearing completion at Yarrows Ltd. Crescent is sister to Crusader, now serving in Korea. Cost of conversion, to be done by the Navy at Dockyard, is estimated at $5,000,000.

Ukrainian Priest Intones Services Undaunted by Lack of Congregation

By HUMPHRY DAVY
No one was present for mass this morning at St. Nicholas Ukrainian Catholic Church on Cook and Caledonia Streets.

But Rev. D. Hnat, Ukrainian priest, went through his devotions as usual.

He went through the mystical eastern rites as if a large congregation were seated in the church. His prayers were the only sound which broke the silence.

Candles which flickered on the altar gave some warmth to the cold and empty place of worship.

B.C. Mine Revenues Slump During Year

B.C. DRIVERS BURN RECORD GAS IN '52

British Columbia motorists used more gasoline in 1952 than in any other year in history, according to provincial finance department figures.

Gasoline consumption totalled 185,000,000 gallons during the year compared to 172,742,019 in 1951.

The 185,000,000 figure is more than double the amount of gas burned in 1945, triple the amount used in 1939.

There are 310,000 motor vehicles in the province.

An early 1951 estimate showed 287,000 vehicles. In 1933 there were 96,867.

Dairy Co-Op Plans 2-Floor Plant in City

Island Farms Dairies Co-op Association announced today plans to build a two-story plant for processing and distribution of milk on Quadra Street at Kings Road.

Expanding business necessitates a move from the association's present plant at 608 Broughton next to the Pemberton Building, an official said.

Architect Henry Whittaker has been instructed to prepare plans and specifications for the new building which will occupy the corner opposite Dad's Cookie Co., 2613 Quadra.

The plant will be of concrete block construction with offices on the second floor.

Tenders will be called shortly and work will proceed early this year.

Declining Prices Not Tonnage Cut Blamed for Drop

Reduction of $15,000,000 in the value of British Columbia mineral production last year was due to a decline in world prices and not a cut-back in tonnage produced, provincial mines department officials said today.

One authority predicted the decline will be noted again in 1953 because prices are "returning to some kind of normalcy."

He explained that mineral prices on world markets went high after the wartime price pegging was discontinued, but in 1950 there was "a shake-down."

Shortly after, when the Korean war broke out, stockpiling of metals by the United States shot prices upward again.

Biggest reductions in B.C. were recorded in gold, silver, lead and zinc. Production value of these minerals dropped more than $21,000,000 in 1952.

LEAP YEAR'S WEDDINGS MAY SET NEW MARK

The ladies had themselves a big year in 1952—a Leap Year. The provincial vital statistics bureau reported today 10,037 marriages up to the end of November last year. Year-end figures are expected to show a gain in marriages over the 11,080 total of 1951.

The statistical branch, of course, doesn't keep any record of "who asked who" in the marital affairs, but it's probably safe to assume a small percentage of the females exercised their Leap Year prerogative and snared themselves spouses.

But the 1952 Leap Year brides have to go some to catch up with their 1948 counterparts. In that Leap Year there were 11,718 marriages.

On the gloomier side, there were 1,422 divorces and 41 annulments in the first 11 months of 1952.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

A fine of $200 was imposed against Lois Brown, Vancouver Street, when she pleaded guilty in city police court Friday to a charge of impaired driving. She was fined $25 also for failing to have a current year's driver's license.

The motor vehicle license branch on Menzies Street is now issuing 1953 validating tabs for British Columbia license plates. The tabs can be purchased now, but not mounted until Feb. 1.

They are blue with the numerals "53" and a totem pole framed in a maple leaf in white. The tabs must be mounted on the top right corner of the 1952 plate.

Mrs. R. McKinney, 658 Niagara, reported to city police today about 11 gallons of gasoline had been siphoned during the night from trucks parked behind her home.

Solarium Officers Negotiate Toward Move Nearer City
Negotiations between the Queen Alexandra Solarium and the provincial government with a view to having the crippled children's hospital moved closer to Victoria are still proceeding.

The plan for moving the hospital has been under discussion for a number of years. Recently, however, Solarium officials have been meeting with government representatives to discuss in detail the proposal.

A site at Gordon Head has been suggested as a possible new location.

Attention to the matter was re-focused when Robert Cheyne, a Solarium director, spoke to a Lions Club meeting Friday.

"The government is almost insisting that the Solarium be moved much closer to the city," he said.

40-Year Resident, Mrs. Rosa Wallace Dies in Esquimalt

Q.—What is the population of the United States?—H.B.L.

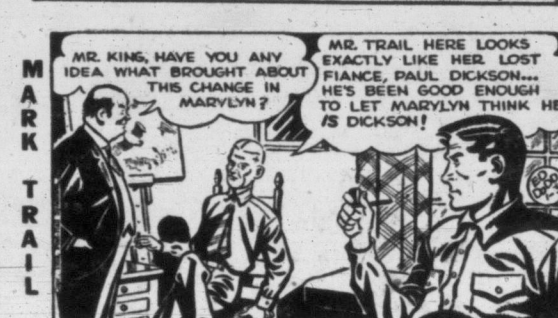

A.—The last country-wide census gave the republic's population at April 1, 1950, as 150,697,361. The census is taken only at ten-year intervals. Thus any estimate of the growth of the population in the last two years and nine months would be speculation.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Easily Broken Bones May Hint of Disease

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, MD

"Why," asks Mrs. R., "should some people suffer so much from broken bones?" I have broken my wrist and both legs at different times during the past year. This has kept me in the hospital a lot and caused a terrible expense, and has kept me at my wit's end.

Anyone who had such an experience in such a short time would be desperate. However, it is not possible to tell from the letter quoted whether the sad experience is just one of those things, or whether it is the result of something more significant.

Some people, for example, are particularly liable to accidents and the term, "accident-prone," has come into use for those who seem to go from one injury to another. But disease also may be responsible.

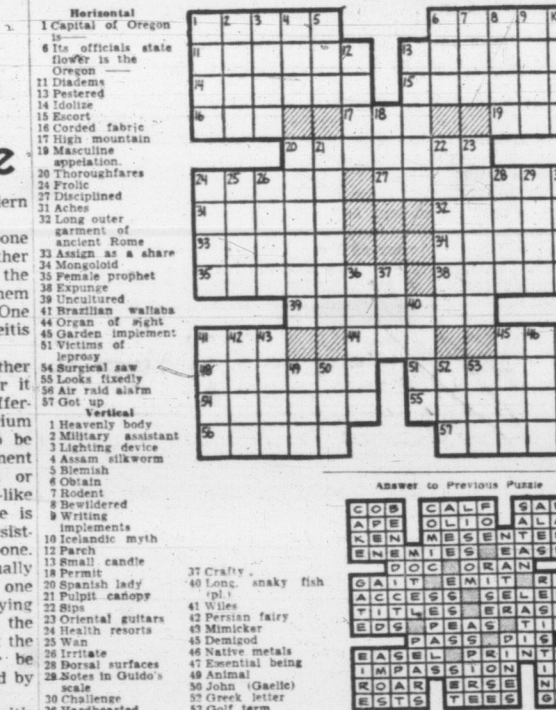

Any disease which weakens the bone structure will lead to easier breaking. Various kinds of tumors of the bone and such diseases as osteomyelitis, which is an infection of the bony tissue, may be at fault. Many of these diseases of the bone can be treated satisfactorily by modern methods.

In addition to strictly bone diseases there are some rather rare conditions which attack the bones and which may make them brittle and easy to break. One of these is known as osteitis fibrosa cystica.

This condition can be either localized in a single bone or it can involve a number of different ones. It causes the calcium which makes bone hard to be withdrawn and the development of a cyst or sac-like area or areas. Wherever such sac-like areas are located, the bone is naturally less strong and resistant to strain than normal bone.

The generalized type is usually caused by a small tumor in one of the parathyroid glands lying in the neck. When this is the case, treatment is directed at the tumor which should either be removed surgically or treated by X-ray.

The localized variety of osteitis fibrosa cystica is quite different. In many cases it is not even recognized until there has been an unexpected fracture often caused by a slight injury.

Defense Board Reports New Canadian Gun

OTTAWA (CP)—The defense research board's first attempt at orthodox gun design—a mountain howitzer that can be dismantled into a number of light parts—has proved successful, the board reports in a year-end review.

The new gun, a report on Canada's first guided missile, participation in the British atomic test off Australia and other matters are mentioned as contributing to "an impressive record of achievement."

A prototype of the new howitzer has been produced and it "promises a variety of operational uses," the review says.

The board said development of Canada's first guided missile—a complex air-to-air device—under design at Valcartier, Que., is "progressing satisfactorily."

The brief references to the weapons gave no details because, the board said, of security.

African Leaders in Britain; Appeal to 'Protector' Queen

LONDON (Reuters)—Five African leaders arrived Friday to appeal to the Queen—"because she is our protector"—against Britain's plans to unite three African possessions in a new political federation.

The leaders represent the chiefs of Nyasaland, which would be united with Northern and Southern Rhodesia under the federation plan involving 6,400,000 Africans, 200,000 Europeans and 14,000 Indians.

The Africans said "We have come to tell the Queen herself and the British people that we do not want federation."

The plan, which would cover an area of 500,000 square miles, is being discussed in London at a government conference boycotted by Africans. They fear the white settlers will dominate them in the proposed federation and that it would mean the end of the African peoples' hopes of self-government.

Scots Play Down Under

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters)—The biggest crowd ever seen in Waipu, North Auckland, Friday watched the Highland games commemorating the landing 100 years ago of the Scottish Nova Scotian pioneers.

The pioneers, from Ross-shire in Scotland and the Hebrides, migrated to Canada in 1817. Later they decided to migrate further to the southern hemisphere, ending up in New Zealand in the 1850s.

The three-day celebration ends today with a pageant symbolizing the landing of the first six ships of the immigrant fleet.

Two survivors of the seven-year-long migration—Mrs. Jessie McKenzie, 99, and Mrs. Johanne McRae, 95—were among the many Scots from New Zealand and overseas attending the celebrations.

Korea Losses Favor U.S. Ten to One

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Communists have suffered 10 times as many casualties as the United States in Korean fighting, the U.S. defense department says in a year-end summary.

The department Friday placed the toll of enemy casualties inflicted by United Nations troops at 1,299,961, compared with 126,845 U.S. killed, wounded, missing and captured. The Communist casualties were corrected to December 1, the U.S. figures to December 26.

The latest report on casualties among Canadian troops lists 239 dead, 913 wounded, 28 missing, 85 injured and one prisoner of war, a total of 1,266.

Best estimate of total UN casualties comes from a December 13 survey which indicated 364,370 UN troops had been killed, wounded, missing or captured up to that date. The same survey estimated 1,764,940 for Communist casualties, including 349,000 wiped out by plague and illness.

Plant to Cost $40 Million

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP)—Construction plans for a $40,000,000 chemical processing plant at the Hanford atomic works near here were announced Friday by the Atomic Energy Commission.

David F. Shaw, AEC Hanford manager, said the new plant is part of an expansion program authorized by the last congress.

Construction work is expected to cover a two-year period.

Plans to help cut car accident costs by training young drivers are being more widely promoted by auto insurance companies.

Squeezed between high payments for accident repairs and a public hostile to further premium boosts, the insurance men are seeking to cut their costs by campaigning to reduce the number of automobile accidents.

Their records show plainly the greatest proportion of accidents occur among the under-25 drivers. Hence the drive to train the youngsters.

The Wawanesa Mutual Insurance Company has revealed a plan to allow 20 per cent off "A" rates for all drivers under 25 who hold acceptable driving certificates from approved training schools.

W. O. Peterson, Wawanesa district manager at Vancouver, explained today this would mean a cut from $28 to $22.20 in Victoria for minimum public liability and property damage coverage, which must at present be held by Junior drivers here.

"If they know greater driving caution and experience will save them money, the younger drivers will be encouraged to co-operate," Mr. Peterson said.

Nuptials in St. Andrew's Cathedral

A quiet nuptial mass was celebrated at St. Andrew's Cathedral on the morning of Dec. 22, uniting in marriage Lucien LaPierre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Auguste LaPierre, Montreal, and Miss Rose Bley, daughter of Mrs. A. Bley, Semons, Sask., and the late Mr. J. Bley. Father Lehane officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by Dr. L. G. C. d'Easum, wore a model gown of white lace over satin, fashioned in strapless bodice in princess lines, and bouffant skirt with layers of white tulle over satin. Her long-sleeved lace jacket with stand-up collar was buttoned to the waist. The veil was of beautiful Brussels lace, falling in train from a dainty hand-crocheted Juliet cap with coronet of orange blossoms.

She wore a jade pendant, gift of the groom, and carried a satin-bound prayer book mounted with American Beauty roses.

Mrs. G. Godbout, only attendant, wore a pink Shantung dress, with brilliant studded bodice. Her corsage was pink and white carnations. The best man was Mr. Igor Patsalie.

A sherry party was held after the ceremony for the bridal party and in the afternoon a small reception was held at the home of the bride. The room was decorated with bronze and yellow chrysanthemums. Mr. F. Lesley proposed the toast to the bride.

Flying to San Francisco for their honeymoon, the bride wore an emerald green worsted suit with black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. LaPierre, who returned to the city on New Year's Day, will live at the Caroline Apartments, Cook Street.

Change From Ancient Days Is Reflected in Jewelry

By PENNY SAVER

The Queen of Sheba wore enough jewelry to win a medal as a woman weight-lifter. Cleopatra probably looked as if she was wearing a ballroom chandelier when she made Antony her Marc.

But the average woman in the ancient world wasn't so elaborate. She came about as close to owning jewelry as she did to such decadent luxuries as a daily wash.

Only the wealthy could afford the jeweler's art back in the days when a Roman nose ruled a world of weak beaks.

It was much the same in the Middle Ages. Queen Isabella of Spain had plenty of pleasure-treasure—she raised the cash to finance Columbus on his westward look-see by pawning her jewels.

The average good wife of the day was lucky to have a pewter mug to hold the beverage she gulped down after blowing the froth off.

Even through the early modern era, conditions were much the same.

But cheers for the modern woman—times have changed and the manner of production, along with it.

Why, today the woman with the most humble income can adorn herself with jewelry that would be the envy of the ancient historical women.

Take, for instance, the popular rhinestone pieces. They do the job of diamonds and cost a mere fraction as much.

In the local stores you can buy rhinestone bracelets for $1.50 and necklaces for just a few pennies more.

And pins, as lavish as you could possibly wish for, are priced from $1. They are shaped in squares, circles and ovals. Just what you may need to brighten up a dress or suit and those with fashion know-how say to wear a splash of rhinestones on your fur coat.

For evening wear, of course, you simply can't beat rhinestone earrings. Whether they hug the ear or reach for your shoulders they make a glorious accent to your formal ensemble.

The price for these will not introduce you to poverty either. They are just as reasonably priced as their sister articles.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

How Long Can She Keep Job Before Baby's Birth?

A reader wrote not long ago, asking "Should I work for as long as I can even though I am expecting a baby? I have a splendid job and do not want to give it up any sooner than I have to. In fact, I may want it back later on."

This is entirely an individual matter. It depends on the kind of work a woman does, and what her individual condition is. It is a question for your doctor to decide. I taught exercise classes for five and a half months when my daughter was on her way here and no one even suspected me, but I would not recommend this for others. Women differ greatly in such ways.

In the long ago women were supposed to retire from public or social life when a little one was expected. The whole thing took on the atmosphere of an illness. This approach seems unhealthy to me. When you have a baby you are performing a perfectly natural function. However, and this is a big however, see a competent physician as soon as you know or suspect that you are pregnant. After that follow his advice implicitly.

If you do this you may save yourself a lot of trouble and danger and will assure your child a safe passport to this world. Many incipient conditions, which might be dangerous later on, can be controlled by your doctor if he sees you soon enough.

Most doctors recommend lots more walking than the average woman takes. Physicians sometimes allow swimming for some of their future mothers. Most women take too little exercise rather than too much—but this is something your doctor must decide for you.

Relaxation, plenty of sleep, enough physical activity and diet control, will be a long way toward making delivery easy and toward minimizing many minor discomforts associated with pregnancy.

Most doctors recommend lots more walking than the average woman takes.

With rising costs of living it is important to many women to keep their jobs for as long as they can. Usually this is possible. Do not rely on your own judgment, though; ask your doctor!

Household Hints

A tip to remember when concocting your favorite salad—cut the ingredients in large enough pieces, so that they do not lose their identity in the salad.

Maps and travel posters used in decorating can be kept spotless with a thin coat of white shellac.

Today we buy anything from biscuits to potatoes in tough, transparent, polythene plastic bags. Most housewives have discovered these bags are wonderful for storing things in the refrigerator. Some women claim that the best way to keep bread fresh is to put it in the "frig" in a polythene bag.

Salad made with the king-size dried lima beans is a top favorite in western households. Cook the lima beans in salted water until tender, but not mushy. Chill and combine with strips of green pepper and slices of onion. Toss gently with sharp French dressing and serve on salad greens.

Here's an epicurean dessert that takes little doing. Drain syrup from a number 2½ can of cling peach slices and use it for gelatin desserts or salads. Cover the peaches with ½ cup Sauterne wine sweetened with 2 tablespoons sugar. Let stand a few hours and serve.

BUYING TIPS

Right now foods which are easily stored like turnips, carrots, parsnips and apples are likely to be good buys. There is always a good selection of canned and frozen foods to add variety to meals. Less expensive cuts of beef which can be braised or made into pot roasts will help cut food costs. When buying eggs figure out the price per ounce.

This gives an indication of which size egg is the most economical. Another good buy to add extra nourishment to meals is skin, milk powder. It is easy to use in many ways, inexpensive to buy and an excellent way to add extra milk to the diet.

Over $10,000 Bazaars Realized at

The generosity enlarged by the festive season is shown in many ways and following as accurate a check as possible the Women's Department of this newspaper has found this generosity is not lessened when it comes to support of projects staged by charitable groups.

During the month of December well over $10,000 was realized at teas, bazaars and country fairs by women's charitable groups in this city.

One of the largest sums, $1,700, was realized at a bazaar staged by the Women's Auxiliary to Centennial United Church. Another large sum was raised at St. Mary's Church bazaar when they added $1,002 to their funds.

An annual event of interest, the holly bazaar of Junior Auxiliary to Protestant Orphanage, raised $900 as did the bazaar of Women's Guild to St. Andrew's Cathedral.

A country fair put on by Oaklands PTA raised one of the largest sums for projects staged by this local group. They realized $650. Another large sum was made at the Victoria West PTA country fair this month.

Adding to the large over-all sums were amounts under $100 realized at teas and bazaars staged by smaller groups.

Queen Mother, Princess Do Their Own Gift Shopping

LONDON (CP)—Two shoppers seen happily mixing with other gift seekers were Princess Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth.

Mother and daughter have always preferred personal shopping to choosing gifts from a selection sent yearly to Buckingham Palace. "It spoils half the fun," Princess Margaret is reported as having said in younger days.

One excursion was made at tea-time to a London department store. The royal ladies, one in black and the other in coral, circled the gift counters laughing and talking and giving orders. They spent much time examining fine glassware.

Although royal presents bought for the family circle are a personal matter, secrets will out. Among those known to have been purchased are an exquisitely-carved antique box bought by the Queen Mother for the Queen. Princess Margaret bought her sister a small jade ornament as costume jewelry.

The Duchess of Kent bought most of her presents in such places as Hong Kong during her recent tour of the Far East. Her gift to the Queen is believed to have been a colorful length of Chinese silk to wear as a scarf.

For Princess Margaret there was a carved ivory cigarette holder of unusual design and Prince Charles received an Oriental dancing toy—several little men dangling from a pair of sticks. Princess Margaret is said to have bought for Prince Philip a tiny clock set in a miniature steering wheel and the Princess Royal sent him the prints of two old sailing ships set in narrow black frames.

Cuthbert, Oliver Street, has returned to the city following an absence of more than a year, during which time she visited the British Isles and the continent, with London as her headquarters. Pies are a favorite Canadian dessert. Flaky pastry seems to be no trick to prepare. Fillings are of major importance. For a chiffon filling par excellence use apricot whole fruit nectar as the liquid ingredient; it's like having fresh apricots in the dead of winter.

Royal Robes To Be Seen In Canada Despite Fog

LONDON (CP)—The great London fog of '32 notwithstanding, Montreal and Toronto still may get a good look at a selection of Royalty's robes.

The four-day fog in early December damaged beyond repair some near-priceless exhibits of the "Museum of Costume" which was to tour the United States, and perhaps Canada, starting Jan. 3.

Now, says Mrs. Doris Langley Moore, who is taking the museum on tour, everything is in confusion. She still hopes to visit parts of Canada but the original date has been set ahead. Nor have any firm arrangements been made.

Costumes have had to be hand-washed to rid them of the fog's filthy traces. Others have been replaced to maintain a high standard.

Besides childhood clothing and apparel worn at the last coronation by the Queen and Princess Margaret, Mrs. Langley Moore has some from the Queen Mother. One is the crimson velvet robe, trimmed with gold and ermine, the elder Queen Elizabeth wore for parts of the last coronation service.

Sunday night suppers are traditional at our house. Would you like to have a look at our standard menu? Large dried lima beans with bacon and onion, raisin muffins, canned cling peach and grapefruit salad, walnut cake. If guests happen to drop in once, we find them making a habit of it come Sunday eve.

Estate Planned For Dogs, Cats

Nothing but the best for some of the world's stray dogs and cats.

Thanks to a wealthy Santa Barbara, Calif., couple, the strays of famed Monte Carlo soon will be living in an estate overlooking the Mediterranean. That high-class haven will become a reality because of the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Girard Van Barkaloo Hale.

Mrs. Hale, discussing the expenditure of big money for stray cats and dogs, says, "I have the answer for the people who complain that such generosity should be shown to humans instead of animals."

She adds—"The people who say that I have observed, usually are the ones who never do anything for anybody. We've done plenty for children too."

The Hales—just back from six months in Europe—have done plenty for lots of people . . . including the whole town of Maille (My-Uh) in France. They adopted it after World War Two. Re-habilitating the village and its 600 residents cost them more than $100,000.

The animal shelter was less expensive. Mrs. Hale says it is an eight-room stone and wood villa, surrounded by 90 acres of terraces and olive trees.

She's reluctant to tell how much the shelter will cost . . . saying only that the initial expense was between $10,000 and $15,000.

Mrs. Hale says a committee of 23 citizens of Monaco, including the wife of Monte Carlo's mayor, will run the shelter.

Nurse Saves 92 Babies in Clinic Blaze

MONTREAL (BUP)—Firemen praised a 19-year-old nurse today for the safe evacuation of 92 babies asleep in a four-story clinic when a fire flashed across the third floor.

Nurse Marie-Anne Fortin, who had been standing over 30 sleeping babies, turned in an alarm when she saw smoke eddying out of a room in the nurses' residence occupying part of the same floor.

Then she quickly called other nurses, many of whom were off duty. They bundled the babies in blankets and carried them to safety on the ground floor. None of the babies was more than six months old.

The fire caused minor damage and was extinguished half hour after it started.

Howe Will Leave Monday on Big Goodwill Trek

Trade Minister Will Visit 19 Latin-American Countries

OTTAWA (CP)—Equipped with a bagful of gifts, Trade Minister Howe sets out Monday on the greatest goodwill mission of his career.

Heading a 12-man delegation of business men and government officials, he will make a 17,000-mile, five-week air hop of nine Latin-American countries, seeking ways to boost the already spectacular expansion in Canadian-Latin trade.

"When you do business with a man, you want to talk with him," says Mr. Howe of his trip.

Canada's total exports to the 20 South American countries has increased 10 times in 13 years—to $140,000,000 in 1951 from $14,000,000 in 1938. Imports jumped 12 times to $246,000,000 from $21,000,000.

Mr. Howe will be talking trade with Argentina's strong man, Juan Peron, President Getulio Vargas of Brazil, and other heads of state and government leaders in Uruguay, Venezuela, Colombia, Dominican Republic, Haiti, Cuba and Mexico.

To each country head he'll be bringing official greetings from Prime Minister St. Laurent and a token of Canada's goodwill—gifts of handicraft from the homes of Quebec.

In his country-to-country hop, Mr. Howe will be making perhaps a dozen speeches to South American chambers of commerce and other trade groups, speaking in English, but including a paragraph or two of Spanish. He learned the language while building grain elevators in South America before he entered politics 18 years ago.

This will be the first Latin American trip for Mr. Howe as a cabinet minister. It will be the first ministerial trade mission there since Senator J. A. MacKinnon, former trade minister, made a tour in 1946.

Canadian-S.A. trade agreements are without import restrictions. But as in Europe, some countries are undergoing exchange crises. Brazil and Argentina are examples. Argentina, a major wheat producer, had a crop failure last year. Brazil is undergoing heavy industrial development, causing her to import more than she is selling, with a resulting dollar shortage.

The mission leaves aboard the C-5 RCAF airliner at 10 a.m. Monday. Those accompanying Mr. Howe will include: D. W. Ambridge, president and general manager of Abitibi Power and Paper Co., representing the Canadian Chamber of Commerce; James Duncan, chairman and president of Massey-Harris Co. Ltd., spokesman for the Canadian Manufacturers' Association; Alex Gray, president of Gray-Bonney Tool Co. Ltd., representing the Canadian Exporters' Association; K. F. Wadsworth, president and general manager of Maple Leaf Milling Co. Ltd.; Clive Davidson, Canadian wheat board secretary, Winnipeg; W. F. Bull, deputy minister of trade.

29 Koreans Killed

PUSAN, Korea (UP)—Twenty-nine hitch-hiking Koreans were killed and 41 injured Friday night when a military freight train jumped the rails while crossing a bridge in South Korea.

Only four of the train's 31 cars were loaded, army officials said, and the Koreans apparently had sneaked aboard empty cars for a free ride.

Undertaker Finds Bullet In Corpse

Heart Attack First Thought Death Cause

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (BUP)—A murder investigation began today after an undertaker discovered a bullet in the brain of a well-to-do farmer who was first believed to have died from a heart attack.

An autopsy on the body of Wilfred Miller, 59, disclosed that a 22 calibre bullet had been fired into his head behind an ear. A provincial police officer said suicide had been ruled out because of the angle of the bullet hole.

Inspector E. Graham arrived from Toronto today to assist local officers.

He said a bullet hole had been found in a window of the Miller home but it was not known whether it was an old mark or had been made by the murder bullet.

DIED IN AMBULANCE
Augusta Buta, an immigrant farm hand employed by Miller, told police he found the body on the floor of the farm home New Year's Day. He rushed to tell neighbors and the farmer died in an ambulance en route to a hospital. It was thought then that he had died of a heart attack.

The undertaker to whose parlors the body was taken discovered the bullet hole and notified police.

Mrs. A. Dubois, one of Miller's neighbors in a farming community 10 miles west of here, said the hired man had run into her house crying in broken English that his employer had suffered a heart attack. She said there were splashes of blood on Buta's clothing.

The immigrant told police the blood must have come from Miller's head when he lifted it after finding him on the floor.

He said he and Miller had spent New Year's Eve together and had retired shortly after 11 p.m. Miller's wife and six-year-old son, Wilfred Jr., were visiting the farmhouse that night or New Year's Day when he found the body.

Fails to Save Boy

A few minutes after this picture was taken, 11-year-old Billy Reiners of Glendale, Calif., died despite the efforts of ambulance driver Frank O'Haver (shown with the boy), and others to save him. Billy fell 1,500 feet down Mt. Wilson where he had gone on an outing with a group of boys.

U.K. Civilian Slain in Egypt

Stabbing Renews Fears of Violence Flaring Up in Suez Canal Zone

CAIRO (Reuters)—Fears of renewed violence in the Suez Canal zone were strengthened today with the news that a British civilian was stabbed to death at Ismailia Friday.

Britons recalled recent reports that Egyptians might return to guerrilla warfare to force Britain to withdraw her troops from the zone.

The body of John Strachan Thomson, employed by the R.A.F., was found in an Ismailia suburb. British authorities denied newspaper reports that Thomson had been killed by an African trooper belonging to the Kenya Mau Mau terrorist sect.

Egypt has protested against the presence of British troops in the Canal Zone. In October, 1951, when Egypt abrogated the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian agreement, a small-scale "war" broke out between Egyptian "liberationists" and British troops.

Sporadic fighting flared until British troops captured 600 Egyptian auxiliary police last January 25. The next day Cairo had its "Black Saturday" riots, in which nine Britons and at least 21 other persons including Canadian High Commissioner J. McLeod Boyer were killed.

U.S. Congress Convenes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The new Republican-controlled Congress convened today and swept through its organizing session without falling into any of the scraps threatened for the first day.

All th' parties started th' New Year right except th' CCF. As usual, they started their left.

See where th' Minister o' Trade'll be rollin' down t' Rio an' other points. Ought t' git quite a welcome, with ever'body sayin' "Here's Howe!"

Time's sure marchin' on. Asked a feller what he got for Christmas an' he sez, "Which Christmas?"

Mau Mau Natives Break Into Lonely Kenya House

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Two white women grabbed their guns and shot it out with a raiding band of Mau Mau natives in their bedroom Friday night. They killed three of the Africans and wounded a fourth.

The Africans broke into their bedroom on a lonely farm in the Mweiga area of Nyeri, a hot spot in the anti-white terrorist campaign waged by the Mau Mau secret cult.

The two women are Mrs. Dorothy Raynes-Simson and Mrs. Kitty Heselburger.

The two women were listening to the radio when they noticed that their houseboy seemed agitated.

Mrs. Raynes-Simson, a South African tennis player, glanced towards the door and saw the raiders entering the room.

One of the raiders immediately ran across the room and attacked Mrs. Heselburger. He seized her by the throat and threw her over a chair.

A boxer dog in the room immediately attacked the African.

Meanwhile Mrs. Raynes-Simson snatched her revolver and fired two shots at a second attacker who was running at her with his knife. He fell dead.

She then turned and shot the man attacking her friend. Though hit he scrambled to his feet and ran from the room, followed by two other members of the gang.

Both women followed them out in the darkness Mrs. Heselburger shot and killed a moving figure who later turned out to be her cook. Police believe that both the cook and the houseboy were implicated in the raid.

A third body was found outside the kitchen door.

C. H. Ferguson, 60, and his partner, Richard Bingley, 23.

They also tied up Bingley's cook, who found the bodies Friday morning.

Another band of 10 tribesmen tried to cut down a Kikuyu elder in the notorious Fort Hall area, but the elder shot and killed one assailant and frightened off the others.

It was the first terrorist murder of Europeans in more than five weeks. The anti-white Mau Mau society had been restricting its attacks to natives who co-operated with the white authorities.

Meanwhile, defense counsel D. N. Pritt returned triumphantly to the remote northern village of Kapenguria to continue his defense of Jomo (Burning Spear) Kenyatta and five other Africans accused of terrorist leadership.

Earlier this week the Kenya Supreme Court cleared Pritt of a charge of contempt of court and ordered the government to pay his costs.

Thursday's Kikuyu assaults surprised the two white farmers.

Trade Minister Will Visit
19 Latin-American Countries

OTTAWA (CP)—Equipped with a bagful of gifts, Trade Minister Howe sets out Monday on the greatest goodwill mission of his career.

Heading a 12-man delegation of business men and government officials, he will make a 17,000-mile, five-week air hop of nine Latin-American countries, seeking ways to boost the already spectacular expansion in Canadian-Latin trade.

"When you do business with a man, you want to talk with him," says Mr. Howe of his trip.

Canada's total exports to the 20 South American countries has increased 10 times in 13 years—to $140,000,000 in 1951 from $14,000,000 in 1938. Imports jumped 12 times to $246,000,000 from $21,000,000.

WILL SEE PERON

Mr. Howe will be talking trade with Argentina's strong man, Juan Peron, President Getulio Vargas of Brazil, and other heads of state and government leaders in Uruguay, Venezuela, Colombia, Dominican Republic, Haiti, Cuba and Mexico.

To each country head he'll be bringing official greetings from Prime Minister St. Laurent and a token of Canada's goodwill—gifts of handicraft from the homes of Quebec.

DOZEN SPEECHES

In his country-to-country hop, Mr. Howe will be making perhaps a dozen speeches to South American chambers of commerce and other trade groups, speaking in English, but including a paragraph or two of Spanish, he learned the language while building grain elevators in South America before he entered politics 18 years ago.

This will be the first Latin-American trip for Mr. Howe as a cabinet minister. It will be the first ministerial trade mission there since Senator J. A. MacKinnon, former trade minister, made a tour in 1946.

EXCHANGE PROBLEMS

Canadian-S.A. trade agreements are without import restrictions. But as in Europe, some countries are undergoing exchange crises. Brazil and Argentina are examples. Argentina, a major wheat producer, had a crop failure last year. Brazil is undergoing huge industrial development, causing her to import more than she is selling, with a resulting dollar shortage.

The mission leaves aboard the C.S. RCAF liner at 10 a.m. Monday. Those accompanying Mr. Howe will include: D. W. Ambridge, president and general manager of Abitibi Power and Paper Co., representing the Canadian Chamber of Commerce; James Duncan, chairman and president of Massey-Harris Co. Ltd., spokesman for the Canadian Manufacturers' Association; Alex Gray, president of Gray-Bonney Tool Co. Ltd., representing the Canadian Exporters' Association; K. F. Wadsworth, president and general manager of Maple Leaf Milling Co. Ltd.; Clive Davidson, Canadian wheat board secretary, Winnipeg; W. F. Bult, deputy minister of trade.

Heart Attack First
Thought Death Cause

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (BUP)—A murder investigation began today after an undertaker discovered a bullet in the brain of a well-to-do farmer who was first believed to have died from a heart attack.

An autopsy on the body of Wilfred Miller, 59, disclosed that a 22 calibre bullet had been fired into his head behind an ear. A provincial police officer said suicide had been ruled out because of the angle of the bullet hole.

Inspector E. Gray arrived from Toronto today to assist local officers.

He said a bullet hole had been found in a window of the Miller home but it was not known whether it was an old mark or had been made by the murder bullet.

Hits $400 Million
Skagway Project

OTTAWA (CP)—Resources Minister Robert Winters has rejected a proposal that Canadian water be used to power a huge American aluminum project in Alaska, according to informants here.

He told I. W. Wilson, president of Aluminum Company of America, in a letter early last month that the Canadian government's responsibility was to see that the waters were used for the "maximum benefit" of Canadians.

Mr. Winters' letter virtually shatters the company's plans of building a $400,000,000 smelter near Skagway, Alaska, for the production of about 200,000 tons of aluminum a year.

The company had said it wants to power the plant by harnessing the Yukon River, which cuts through Alaska but which has its headwaters in the Yukon and northern British Columbia.

It cannot do this without permission of the Canadian government.

Alcoa officials met last November with British Columbia government officials for preliminary talks on the proposal.

Neither Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers or his deputy, George Melrose, were available for comment today, but it is understood they had been awaiting a formal proposal from the big company.

B.C. entered the picture because the project would have required water rights on Atlin Lake which lies partly in this province.

Nurse Saves
92 Babies in
Clinic Blaze

MONTREAL (BUP)—Firemen praised a 19-year-old nurse today for the safe evacuation of 92 babies asleep in a four-story clinic when a fire flashed across the third floor.

Nurse Marie-Anne Fortin, who had been standing over 30 sleeping babies, turned in an alarm when she saw smoke eddying out of a room in the nurses' residence occupying part of the same floor.

Then she quickly called other nurses, many of whom were off duty. They bundled the babies in blankets and carried them to safety on the ground floor. None of the babies was more than six months old.

The fire caused minor damage and was extinguished half hour after it started.

change of atomic knowledge and closer Anglo-American relations on Tuesday.

But to date, no definite schedule for his talks with Eisenhower or for his visit to Washington for a farewell call on outgoing President Truman has been announced.

The Prime Minister, who has devoted much time aboard ship to study of the official papers he is bringing with him and to dictating the last volume of his war memoirs, will be host with Mrs. Churchill at a cocktail party this evening in his suite.

It will be the first social function of the voyage for the 78-year-old Churchill—except for New Year's Eve, when he drank champagne and greeted the New Year with a pledge to work for closer British-American understanding.

The guest list for tonight's party includes a number of titled persons aboard as well as several British and American naval officers personally selected by Churchill. The Prime Minister has always retained his early love for the sea and for the men of the navy which he commanded as First Sea Lord during the First World War.

During Friday afternoon Mr. Churchill appeared on deck for his daily constitutional and visited the captain's bridge.

He was dressed in a dark blue, naval-type overcoat and a naval peaked cap.

After his turn around the deck, he retired to his suite for a brief rest before the family dinner in the softly-lighted, luxurious grill room of the ship.

A bottle of Churchill's favorite Pol Roger champagne was iced by the ship's steward and was awaiting him when he arrived at his table.

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP)—Utah and Turman Wilson died on the gallows early today for the 1950 kidnapping-slaying of a young girl, but before their bodies could be cut down the Washington State Prison was thrown into a turmoil by a telegraphic hoax that purportedly spared them.

For a few brief, hectic moments it appeared that fate had played a tragic trick on the Camas, Wash., brothers who four times before had cheated the hangman.

But the telegram was quickly found to be false, and a probe was started to track down the sender.

Just as the brothers were pronounced dead by the prison doctor at 12:16 a.m. PST, the Western Union office here frantically rang the office of Warden John Cranor.

A telegram had just been received, bearing the signature of "W. D. Magnuson." It read: "Herewith is ordered a stay of execution of Wilson brothers by emergency decree, presidential authority, delegated through me as U.S. senator from Washington. Confirmation coming from Olympia."

Presumably, it was from the state's senior U.S. senator, Warren G. Magnuson.

But in quick succession, Magnuson denied in Washington, D.C., he had sent such a message.

Manslaughter Charge
Against Longshoreman

Archibald Campbell in Saanich Court
Today as Result of Traffic Fatality

Archibald Campbell, 40, of 200 Burnside Road West was charged with manslaughter at a special sitting of Saanich police court today, arising out of a Christmas Eve traffic death on Tillicum Road.

The tall, husky longshoreman is alleged to have been the driver of a car that hit Frederick Armstrong, 79, of 80 Crease Avenue, around 7 p.m. on December 24.

Campbell was also charged, with failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

At the request of his counsel, George F. Gregory, accused was remanded to next Thursday afternoon's regular sitting of Saanich court. Mr. Gregory said he would be ready to proceed with the preliminary hearing January 8.

Campbell was arrested Friday evening and was released on $5,000 bail set by Magistrate H. C. Hall. Lloyd G. McKenzie will be prosecutor in the case.

A coroner's jury Friday returned a verdict that Armstrong's death was accidental "due to collision with an object, evidently a motor vehicle."

Police said Campbell turned his car over to police about four hours after Armstrong's body had been found in a ditch near the corner of Tillicum and Ker.

Campbell contacted police after radio stations had broadcast the hit-and-run death report and Saanich police had appealed to all persons who had driven in that vicinity Christmas Eve to report.

Detective Joseph Armstrong said the Campbell car had a broken right headlight and a dented right fender, and it is on expert analysis of damage the police case is built.

Dr. T. W. McConnell Davis, provincial analyst, is completing laboratory tests on glass found at the scene.

Abandon Hope
For Lost Tug
Crew of Seven

VANCOUVER (CP)—The seven-man crew of the ill-fated tug Petrel has been officially listed as "missing and believed drowned."

The Petrel, missing since Dec. 27 on a 150-mile trip across the stormy Gulf of Georgia from Vancouver to Quadra Island, is believed to be lying 500 feet below the surface near Cape Mudge, 90 miles north of here.

An RCMP spokesman at Campbell River, near Cape Mudge, said today that pieces of wreckage found on nearby Maule Island have been definitely linked with the Petrel.

Discovery of the wreckage brought the official listing of "missing and believed drowned."

The crew: Capt. Donald Horie, 24; mate George Fegan, 23; chief engineer John Fanning, 29; second engineer Phil McAleese, 44; cook Edward Johnson, 65; deckhands Vern-Perry, 22, and E. F. Bensten, 38, all of Vancouver.

CHICAGO (BUP)—The separated Brodie siamese twins are holding their own today—18 days after their history-making separation—and a hospital spokesman denies a rumor that the weaker of the two is fading fast.

The spokesman says "Roger always has been as close to death as you can get, but there has been no particular change that would indicate he'll die in the next few minutes. He may still be living in the next few months."

WILL BE 12 HOURS LATE
Churchill Host at Party Aboard
Storm-Tossed Liner Queen Mary

ABOARD THE QUEEN MARY (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill's scheduled Monday morning arrival in New York for an historic series of conferences with U.S. President-elect Eisenhower may be delayed as much as 12 hours by Atlantic storms.

A new course was charted today to skirt a severe storm reported developing.

The British prime minister, who has made a number of passengers sea-sick.

But he remained in his 10-room suite Friday night, working with his secretaries, and passed up the movie he had planned to attend in the ship's theatre.

Heavy storm shutters were clamped into place on the forward portions of the Queen Mary early today as warnings were received of an angry mid-Atlantic blow which was piling up high seas on the liner's intended course.

There was no indication whether the change in arrival time in New York would delay the first meeting between the prime minister and Eisenhower, whom he knows as an old friend from the Second World War.

It originally has been expected that the two would get together, to discuss such monumental issues as the Korean War, exchange of atomic knowledge and closer Anglo-American relations on Tuesday.

Sources close to Churchill indicated he intends to lose no time in getting down to business after he reaches the United States.

But to date, no definite schedule for his talks with Eisenhower or for his visit to Washington for a farewell call on outgoing President Truman has been announced.
